Chicago Straw Hat Day
A Lion in Four Hours
Tell 'Em Quick and Often Flirtatious Gangster

By Arthur Brisbane

CHICAGO, May 27—Yesterday was straw hat day in Chicago, warm summer weather which is appropriate, a heavy rain storm at noon, bad for straw hats.

Chicago takes "our depression" cheerfully. A Chicago man will tell you "I don't know whether we have reached bottom or not, but I know the bottom is there, won't run away, and I am not worrying."

George Buckley, of Wall Street, N. Y., who absorbed business cheerfulness in Chicago, passing through to visit the folks in Iowa, expressed the feeling of many Chicagoans. "There is nothing the matter with me, that a million dollars would not cure."

John McKinlay, president of Marshall Field & Co., shows you the world's biggest building, The Merchandise Mart, built to supply for the country's wholesalers a concentrated show-room market for buyers from everywhere.

This building, with four million feet of floor space, should be duplicated in other big cities when times get better. The railroad runs under it delivering goods, and there is a private freight platform for trucks seven hundred feet long. The railroad owns the ground, the building owns the air and the small amount of ground in which its supporting columns are buried.

James Simpson is away, showing Africa and Asia a few samples of Chicago efficiency. His son was shooting in Africa. James Simpson took an airplane in Egypt, flew down to the country where lions roar and bite, and shot his first lion four hours after he landed. Thence he proceeded to India to shoot tigers and will be back in a week.

Greater efficiency hath or could have no man than this, unless he should bring his live lions to Chicago and shoot them on the lake front.

P. K. Wrigley, carrying on the business of his father, the late William Wrigley, Jr., is a good thermometer of business conditions. Everybody that sells anything also sells his product. His father used to say he had 110 per cent distribution, 100 per cent of those that ought to sell chewing gum, and 10 per cent that had no business selling it.

Two hundred thousand small distributors have folded their tents like the Arabs and no longer distribute. But Mr. Wrigley says business conditions satisfy him, thanks to the fact that he lives up to his father's advertising motto, "Tell 'em quick and tell 'em often."

Other advertisers might borrow that slogan.

Dr. Richelle Yarros, intelligent young woman who supervises family consultation for the Illinois Social Hygiene League, asserts positively that husbands do not want to be flighty and uncertain.

They want to settle down permanently, they want to be faithful, they are at heart almost as monogamous as the wild gander that never takes a new mate when the goose dies, but spends its life mourning, although eating heartily.

In fact, Dr. Yarros says, men that have not found the right woman and settled down to permanency, are pitifully lonely.

Mr. Gus Sanger, kidnaping gangster, has made a discovery important to kidnapers, namely, that the kidnaper should attend to one thing at a time. He and his comrades kidnaped Dr. Max Gecht and wife. They deprived the wife of all her clothing and chained her to the foot of the bed, that she might not escape, but offered no other violence.

Foolish Gus Sanger mixed lovemaking with kidnaping and arranged to meet Mrs. Gecht on her return to private life.

That intelligent lady, who believes in punishing wrongdoers, encouraged him sufficiently to secure his arrest and that of his gang. One escaped. Two will go to prison for life, the susceptible Mr. Sanger turned state's evidence and got off.

Managua reports that United States marines have killed 17 Nicaraguan rebels. Airplanes helped in the killing. Doubtless the Nicaraguans had done something that justified our going down their to punish their brigands.

Might it not be a good idea to have other marines sent to our big cities to interfere with the activities of homegrown brigands? We have some.

Mr. Rufus Dawes is cheerful about the big "Century of Progress" exposition now sure to open on time June 1, 1933. That will be a good thing for Chicago, and the two political conventions next month have caused all hotel rooms to be engaged and will put a great deal of money in circulation.

Politicians have money and make it circulate.

Twohig Near Fisticuff in State House Tilt

Because a well-dressed, studious-appearing gentleman objected to being called a "mugg," the $40,000,000 subway bill hearing before the legislative committee on metropolitan affairs was thrown into an uproar today, with Senator James J. Twohig of South Boston accepting a challenge to "go outside."

It all happened when the studious-appearing gentleman, who claimed to be a friend of Mayor Curley, interrupted Col. Thomas F. Sullivan of the Boston Transit Commission as the latter was being questioned relative to the mayor's proposed subway legislation.

"YOU MUGG!" CRIES TWOHIG

He arose and asked Sen. Charles C. Warren of Arlington, chairman of the committee, if he might make a few remarks as to the manner in which the estimated cost of $40,000,000 for the subways was reached.

Sen. Warren replied that it was not a public hearing and that remarks from spectators were not in order.

"Then I will speak to Representative Wadsworth," said the stranger. And he began forthwith.

"Call an officer and throw that mugg out of here!" shouted Senator Twohig.

"Whose a mugg?" queried the stranger.

"You're a mugg," spake Twohig.

ACCEPTS FIGHT DARE.

"Come outside and call me a mugg!" challenged the stranger.

"All right, you mugg, come on!" said Twohig, arising from his chair.

But cooler heads prevailed and the senator from South Boston was restrained.

Outside the stranger said he was Edward Stanley of Dorchester—"a friend of Mayor Curley," he added. "I thought it was an open hearing. I would not have spoken otherwise," he said.

Nobody at the mayor's office could remember Mr. Stanley.

"Never heard of him," said the mayor.

And the mayor's secretary, Cornelius Reardon, said:

"Mayor Curley did not send this man to the hearing. The mayor knows nothing about him. It isn't likely that a friend of the mayor would interrupt Col. Sullivan."

BOSTON TO GET MORE SHOWERS

Cool weather was handed out to Boston today following the tempestuous thunderstorm which broke the two-day hot wave, but took two lives and caused heavy damage throughout the state.

More showers were predicted by the weatherman, who said the weather would be mostly cloudy tonight and Saturday, with not much change in temperature.

The official temperature was around 60 during the day, with little indication that it would go higher.

DEAN ABSOLVES SELF OF HOAX

Norfolk, Va., May 27 (INS)—Absolving himself and Admiral Guy Burrage of any knowledge of the hoax perpetrated by John Hughes Curtis on Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock today issued a statement "owed to the public, inasmuch as New Jersey authorities have taken no steps to interview me at Norfolk."

He confined his discussion to the flight he made to Hopewell on March 28 when Lindbergh was asked to deposit $25,000 to the joint credit of Curtis, Dobson-Peacock and Admiral Burrage. The ransom was not to be paid until after the safe return of the child.

"Col. Lindbergh's answer," Dobson-Peacock declared, "was that he would enter into no negotiations with the kidnapers until he received satisfactory evidence that the men with whom Curtis claims he was dealing actually had the child.

"All information in my possession had been given to local and Federal authorities, prior to Curtis' so-called confession.

"It is regretful to me that my efforts to be of service to Col. Lindbergh, and at my own expense, should be the subject of unjust and mean insinuation and innuendo."

FOUR DIE, 32 SAVED IN SHIP COLLISION

Boston Freighter Grecian Was Rammed by City of Chattanooga Off Block Island

In fog and darkness and rough seas off Block Island early today an epic of marine rescue history was enacted as the Boston freighter Grecian plunged to the bottom after collision with the Boston-bound passenger liner, City of Chattanooga.

The big coastwise liner rammed the smaller freighter in a dense haze off Southeast Light, five miles south of Block Island, at 2:05 a. m.

The Grecian, torn asunder, started her dive in 15 fathoms of water immediately after the crash. There was no time to launch the boats. Her captain aand crew leaped overboard in the darkness and the fog and the crashing seas—and 3 2 were sav,ed. Four were drowned.

Thirty-two of the Grecian's crew, 10 of them injured, two of them seriously, were gathered into the lifeboats of the City of Chattanooga as they floundered in the seas or clug to bits of wreckage within a half hour of the collision.

Swift and heroic rescue work averted a marine disaster of major proportions.

PASSENGERS CHEER

The City of Chattanooga, herself slightly damaged, had her boats in the water within a few minutes of the crash. She dropped anchor and her big searchlights cut through te haze across te white waters, dimly lighting the area of search as her boats battled here and there, among the Grecian's wreckage pulling injured and half-drowned survivors to safety.

The perilous work of getting the rescued aboard the City of Chattanooga was accomplished while 35 of that ship's passengers, aroused by the collision, some fearing for the safety of their own vessel, lined the rails and cheered.

The work of rescue was accomplished when the first ship to answer the distress call, the Cosat

BORAH'S THREAT TO BOLT SPLITS G. O. P. ON RUM

KEEPS HOOVER IN LINE FOR A DRY PLANK

President Told He Must Not Favor Referendum; Whole Party Outlook Changes

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent.
(Copyright, 1932, by International News Service.)

Washington, May 27 (INS)——The dread spectre of a prohibition controversy so keen and so bitter that it will split the party as it has not been split since 1912, rose to haunt Republican leaders today as they debated pro and con the wisdom of putting a resubmission plank in their 1932 platform.

A fortnight ago, after Ohio had plopped into the wet column and the drys had experienced defeats in other normally Republican states, it appeared virtually certain that the moist Republicans would have their way at Chicago and write into the platform a plank calling for resubmission. Eight members of President Hoover's Cabinet favored it, and so did the leaders of most of the larger states.

President Hoover himself was variously reported as wavering, and as having been won over to the idea.

BORAH THREATENS BOLT.

The situation is entirely different today. For that strangely influential figure in Republican councils, Senator William E. Borah, has set his face uncompromisingly against it. Moreover, he has served notice on the White House and upon the party leadership generally, that if the party attempts to deal with the question at Chicago by adopting a wet plank, he will take the stump against it—and those who stand for it—in the ensuing campaign.

Borah's ultimatum—and it can be called that—was served upon Mr. Hoover personally. He went to the White House last week, not upon his own initiative, but at the President's request, after a group of dry leaders had informed Mr. Hoover they were willing to accept any prohibition plank that was agreeable to the Idahoan.

Naturally, Mr. Hoover was anxious to ascertain Borah's views. It was the first time the Idahoan had crossed the White House threshold in months.

Just what Sen. Borah said to Mr. Hoover and what Mr. Hoover said to Sen. Borah remains locked up in the bosoms of both men.

HOOVER'S HURRY CALL.

It was after Borah's visit to the White House that the President called in a group of leaders from outside of Washington who have been most active in promoting the resubmission plank—Charles D. Hilles of New York, Joseph R. Nutt, of Cleveland, James F. Burke of Pittsburgh and Postmaster-General Walter F. Brown, perhaps the most industrious of all in pushing it.

They talked at length, but if they came to any conclusions the fact was carefully concealed.

Borah is a consistent dry. He is one of the small minority in Congress that votes as he drinks. As a constitutionalist, he takes the position that the Eighteenth Amendment must be taken from the Constitution, if it is to be taken, in the same manner it was put in—that is, by action of two-thirds o. the House and Senate, and three-fourths of the states.

President Hoover is extremely desirous of having the eloquent Idahoan on his side in the forthcoming battle. He has not forgotten the yeoman work done by Borah in 1928, when he trailed "Al" Smith through state after state, attacking Smith's wetness with a forensic fury of which only Borah is capable.

Now, the vision of Borah stumping in opposition to the Republican platform and its candidates in 1932 on the wet-and-dry issue, or worse still, forming an alliance with Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania in a third-party dry ticket, is one that is exceedingly uncomfortable to contemplate.

Cannon Warns of Bitter Dry War

Washington, May 27 (INS)—A warning was served today on every member of Congress by Bishop Cannon, speaking for the board of temperance and social service of the Methodist Church, South, that all suggestions for resubmission, repeal or modification planks in the Democratic and Republican platforms this year will be opposed to the bitter end.

The warning was served by letter to each individual member. Among other things, it stated:

"The conflict between the church of Christ and this (liquor) traffic is inevitable and irrepressible. There is no discharge in this war, no retreat. No compromise is possible."

ADMIRAL URGES NAVY SUPPORT

Newport, R. I., May 27 (AP)—A plea for support of the Navy by the American public was made here today by Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of operations, at the 48th commencement exercises of the Naval War College.

Admiral Pratt, who was once a student at the college and later its president, spoke with emotion as he recalled that today's exercises would be the last he would participate in as an active officer.

Both the Admiral and Secretary Adams, who presented their diplomas to the 79 graduating officers, praised the memory of the founder of the college, Admiral Stephen B. Luce.

CURLEY BACKS ELY TAX PLAN

Mayor Curley will continue to support the tax program proposed by Governor Ely "without comment" until after final approval, th eMayor said today in answer to queries as to his position on tax legislation now pending.

"There is no means of determining,' the Mayor said, "what the final action of the egislature will be on matters affecting the tax rate now being considered by its members.

"With a recognition of the cities and towns of the Commonwealth and of additional funds to meet the increased obligations due to unemployment, I have supported the program as presented by Governor Ely and shall continue to do so, and will have no comment to make after final approval has been given to legislation now pending."

King Victor Greets U. S. Prize Winners

Rome, May 27 (AP)—King Victor Emanuel visited the American Academy of Fine Arts today and looked over its exhibition. He was received by Ambassador and Mrs. Garrett.

The King congratulated 15 Americans who won the "Prix de Rome." They included Sidney B. Waugh, Amherst, Mass.; Thomas D. Price, Boston; Salvatore de Maio, New Haven, Ct., and Warren F. Mosman, Bridgeport, Ct.

3 Posts Combine for Memorial Service

Memorial Day exercises will be held by William L. Harris Post of the Legion, composed of post-office employes, Monday at 9:30 a. m., in co-operating with Mattapan and Old Dorchester posts.

The combined membership of the three posts will form at Mattapan Post headquarters, near Mattapan sq., and, led by the Harris Post Band and two drum corps, will proceed to Mt. Hope Cemetery.

Dean of Girls Finds Way to Banish Ankle Socks

Hartford, Conn., May 27 (AP)—Old stockings with holes and runs are stylish at Weaver high school, but they're not a bit populat.

The style was set by Miss Faith H. Talcott, dean of girls, to combat the ankle socks movement. She ruled that any girl wearing ankle socks must change them for old stockings when she enters the school building. Miss Talcott supplies the stockings.

The students, insisting that ankle socks are "sanitary, comfortable and inexpensive," are circulating petitions pleading for abolition of Miss Talcott's edict.

BACCHUS JEERS AT FLAGPOLES

Something acute in flagpole situations was visited upon Quincy today, but what is Quincy's loss is Bridgewater's gain.

Quincy's poles were rapidly rounding into new spring coats of paint until James F. Cahill, official flagpole decorator, fell into the ways of Barleycorn and left the police flagpole flat—that last flat meaning the first coat of flat paint.

It had to dry . . . he felt the urge . . . and was trundled into a cell in the very shadow of that flagpole.

"An indefinite term at State Farm, Bridgewater," pronounced Judge Avery.

"But the flagpoles . . . the police station flagpole . . and the courthouse flagpole I have to do next week," quetied Cahill.

"I'm corry for the flagpole," said Judge Avery.

Doctors Fight Ban on Birth Control

New Haven, Ct., May 27 (AP)—The Connecticut State Medical Society adopted a resolution urging a law to permit physicians to give contraceptive information when necessary for the health of a patient.

The society made it clear that it did not go on record in favor of birth control.

Saline, Kiley Case Witness, Released

Allan D. Saline, held in East Cambridge Jail for some time in $25,000 bonds as an accessory after the fact to the murder of James M. Kiley, Somerville filling station manager, was released today. Judge Gray released Saline on recommendation of Asst. Dist. Atty. Volpe, who nol-prossed the indictment.

Seacoast Canning Company Dissolved

Lubec, Me., May 27—Dissolution of the Seacoast Canning Co., one of the largest packing concerns in Maine, is announced by Robert J. Peacock, president.

'JAFSIE' MUM ON MYSTERY TRIP

Becket, May 27 (AP)—Following an unexplained motor trip from the camp of Walter C. Goodwin, where he has been since Monday, Dr. J. F. (Jafsie) Condon, prominent figure in the Lindbergh case, went into seclusion today and denied himself to newspaper men.

Neither he nor Goodwin would comment on the trip beyond Goodwin's word that its bearing upon the Lindbergh case was unimportant. It is the present expectation that Condon will remain at the camp over Memorial Day.

Lindy Ready to Testify if Curtis Is Indicted

Trenton, N. J., May 27 (INS)—Col. Lindbergh was listed today by Prosecutor Hauck as ready and willing to testify if John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk shipbuilder, who admitted faking negotiations for the return of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby, goes on trial for obstructing justice by giving out false information.

While the action of the grand jury has not been officially announced, every indication pointed to an indictment having been found against Curtis.

Trial has been set tentatively for June 13. In addition to Col. Lindbergh, Prosecutor Hauck intends to call as witnesses the two men associated with Curtis in the "negotiations," Dobson-Peacock and Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage.

Schildkraut Weds Mary Mackey

Vienna, May 27 (AP)—Joseph Schildkraut, film and stage star of Hollywood and Vienna, and Mary Mackey of London were married today in Vienna's city hall. One of the witnesses was John William Scott, American vice consul. After their wedding journey Mr. and Mrs. Schildkraut will go to Hollywood.

Marion Talley May Return to Opera

New York, May 27 (INS)—Marion Talley, singer back from a trip to Germany, today said she was likely to invoke woman's prerogative to change her mind and appear in opera again despite her statements she never would do so.

She continued the study of music abroad.

German War Veteran, 'Killed' at Somme, Turns Up Alive

Endingen, Baden, Germany, May 27 (AP)—Oskar Daubmann, 36, German war veteran who for 16 years has been believed dead and whose name is engraved on a monument to World War dead here, has written his aged parents that he is alive and well.

He said after sustaining serious wounds in the battle of the Somme in 1916 he tried to escape from a French prison, was caught and deported to Africa, from whence he now has arrived at Palermo.

The German consul at Naples confirmed the story.

SENATE GIVEN WALSH SALES TAX PLAN

Amendment Calls for 1.75 P. C. Levy; Sentiment for Action Is Growing

Washington, May 27 (AP)—The 1.75 per cent sales tax amendment was introduced today in the Senate by Senator Walsh (D.) of Massachusetts.

The Massachusetts senator awaited an opportunity to bring the issue to a vote.

The Senate was to vote first on the proposed increases in postal rates in the bill.

PROPOSAL WITHHELD

Walsh has carefully withheld the sales tax proposal until the special excise rates were voted on. He wants to substitute the general sales levy for the excise rates.

The sales tax proposal, for which its sponsors today were claiming a bare majority, would exempt food, clothing medicine, farm implements and publications.

Senator Smoot said after a visit to the White House that he believed sentiment was growing in the Senate for a general sales tax.

The veteran Utah senator, chairman of the finance committee, said he discussed the tax situation in general and the legislative program with the President.

COPELAND VISITS HOOVER

Another senator who called—Copeland (D., N. Y.)—said he told Mr. Hoover he also believed sentiment was growing for the tax.

Copeland expressed the opinion that some relief measure must be passed by Congress before it adjourns. He said he disagreed with administration opposition to the bond issue proposal, such as has been advanced by Alfred E. Smith, Speaker Garner and the program outlined by Senate Democrats.

TAX FOES CONFIDENT

Despite claims of the sales advocates of a majority, the opposition was confident of beating the tax. The fact that the House twice rejected it is playing a part in the Senate consideration.

President Hoover, in a series of conferences with Senate leaders urged speed in disposition of the tax measure.

Although the sales tax was discussed at the Wednesday night meeting of the President and newspaper publishers, there is no indication that he is going to come out for the levy unless the Senate finds itself in serious difficulty in raising necessary revenue.

La Guardia to Back Garner Relief Plan

Washington, May 27 (AP)—The tentative draft of the bill embodying Speaker Garner's $2,147,000,000 relief program was being revised today to correct several errors before it is introduced.

Hearings may begin before the House ways and means committee Monday.

Representative La Guardia (R. N. Y.), a leader of the Independents and Representative Mead (D., N. Y.), a sponsor of relief legislation, said they would support the Garner program.

How New England Benefits by Program

Washington, May 27 (INS)—Public building projects under the relief program of Speaker John N. Garner will extend to every State. Postoffice or other federal buildings projected include:

Connecticut—Winsted, $115,000.

Maine—Portland, Marine Hospital, $220,000.

Massachusetts—Clinton, $30,000; Boston, Marine Hospital, $30,000; parcel post building, $4,500,000; quarantine station, $110,000; West Springfield, $100,000.

A sum of $90,000,000 is set aside for postoffices in cities for which the limits of cost have been fixed, to expedite their construction. They include:

Maine—Portland.

Massachusetts—Lynn, Cambridge.

New Hampshire—Manchester.

Rivers and harbors plans embrace virtually all projects which have been approved by army engineers, including: Boston harbor, $4,800,000, and Lynn harbor, Mass., $80,000.

Boston Woman on New Nursing Board

Lexington, Ky., May 27 — Its eight-year program accomplished one year ahead of schedule, the Frontier Nursing Service, established to aid mothers and children by providing trained nurse-midwives is ready to send trained workers to any part of remotely rural America, Mrs. Mary Breckinridge, executive director, said here.

New trustees added to the national board included Mrs. David C. Gardiner of Boston.

Hoover Dam to Wipe Out Settlement

Salt Lake City, Utah, May 27—The famous Mormon frontier settlement, St. Thomas, Nev., will become a very wet "Ghost City" after the Hoover Dam is completed, when water backed up by the huge dam will completely inundate the settlement.

Plans are being made to transfer the residents, 274 persons, to a 12,000-acre ranch, 135 miles away.

Bail Jumpers

ROBERT LOHS

JOHN LONG

Indicted as leaders of the Hudson auto theft ring, John Long and Robert Lohs are being held at Montreal for Middlesex County officers. They jumped bonds of $15,000.

OFFICER KILLER GIVEN LIFE

Biddeford, Me., May 27—Lawrence Noll, 22, was found guilty today on first degree murder in the killing of Patrolman Honore Dutremble of the Biddeford police department and was sentenced to life imprisonment in the state prison at Thomaston.

As he was being led from the courthouse his mother collapsed on the stairs. Noll struggled desperately with his guards in an effort to reach her side and was severely beaten before he was subdued.

EX-GOV. SMALL URGES REPEAL

Springfield, Ill., May 27 (AP)—Former Gov. Len Small, Republican nominee for Governor, told the Republican State convention today he was for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

His declaration came soon after Keynoter and Temporary Chairman Frank L. Smith of Dwight, Ill., a personal "dry," urged the delegates to adopt a platform plank for resubmission of the liquor question to the states and blamed the Democrats for placing the Eighteenth Amendment in the federal constitution.

The statements of both Small and Smith were interpreted by observers as indications that for the first time since prohibition came into effect in 1920 Republicans in Illinois would wage a campaign on a platform that included resubmission or possible prohibition repeal among its planks.

Report Awaited in Quincy Girl's Death

Quincy police early today said they were awaiting a report from Medical Examiner Fred E. Jones before they took any further action in the mysterious death of Irene MacDonald, 26, attractive Boston office manager, who was found dead in bed at her home, High st., Quincy, Wednesday.

TWO FUGITIVES TRAPPED BY A GIRL'S NOTE

Auto Ringleaders Arrested in Montreal After Once Shooting Way to Freedom

Trapped because a detective dug around until he learned the identity of a girl sweetheart, John Long, 35, and Robert Lohs, 31, alleged leaders of the Hudson auto stealing ring, were captives today in Montreal as preparations were being made to return them here.

Detective Walter F. Gallagher, retained by the Lexington Surety and Indemnity Co. when the men defaulted $15,000 bonds in Middlesex Superior Court, notified Montreal authorities that State Detective Joseph Ferrari would be in possession of extradition papers today.

The fugitives were captured last night at gunpoint by Montreal officers who had trailed them constantly since they sped through a police trap in that city a number of days ago, driving up on the sidewalk through a crowd and firing four shots.

TRAILED THROUGH GIRL

Their capture may change the complexion of the case of Francis Mahoney, Boston insurance broker and bondsman for the prisoners. He is held in $20,000 on a charge of uttering forged powers of attorney in connection with the bonds.

It was through Detective Gallagher's skill that Long and Lohs were captured. Gallagher learned that the sweetheart of one of the men was a girl named Mildred in Hartford, Ct. A message to Mildred from the fugitives was intercepted giving the Connecticut number of a car they were driving.

Points of entry into Canada were checked, and it was found that the car had been admitted through Plattsburgh and Rouse's Point. Montreal police were informed and the car was found in a garage and the men traced to a hotel.

OTHER CHARGES

After their escape from the police trap, all known hangouts of narcotic sellers and users and thieves were watched—and last night the men were surprised as they emerged from one such place.

In addition to the charges of theft and conspiracy to steal in Middlesex County, Long and Lohs are still wanted for safe-cracking in Holyoke and Springfield, in Hartford and in Albany, N. Y., and police are searching for $19,000 in bonds, stolen from a safe in Hartford and declared to have been offered for sale in Springfield four days later, April 28, by one of the men.

Ina Claire Wishes Gilbert Happiness in Marriage

Hollywood, May 27—Ina Claire, glamorous blonde queen of the movies and Broadway, wishes her former husband, John Gilbert, nothing but the greatest happiness in his next marital venture.

Ina Claire

Ina bestowed her benediction on Virginia Bruce, who has been called one of the three most beautiful girls in the world, and her ex-husband, when she was informed of their engagement.

About Miss Bruce, Ina was silent. Hollywood is expecting an August wedding, because the divorce parting Ina and Gilbert will then become final.

Orville Wright Returns to Scene of First Flight

Kitty Hawk, N. C., May 27—Orville Wright, who with his brother, Wilbur, flew the first airplane 29 years ago, returned yesterday to the scene of his initial triumph with heavier than air machines.

Orville Wright

Wright visited Kill Devil Hill, walked over familiar scenes, paused here and there to recall various incidents that led to the launching of the first successful airplane. Wright signified pleasure over a memorial being erected by the United States army quartermaster division honoring the brothers and their contribution to the world.

Wright came here from Langley Field where he had attended the seventh annual conference of the Aircraft Engineering Research division of the national advisory committee for aeronautics.

Gov. Roosevelt Rested Up, Returns to New York

New York, May 27—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wearing a brand new coat of tan, returned to New York today after a 25-day program of "intensive rest" at Warm Springs, Ga.

Gov. Roosevelt

Gov. Roosevelt, in high spirits and apparently physically fit, carefully warded off all questions concerning his political program and politics in general.

Politics apparently commanded his immediate attention, however, because shortly after his arrival he visited the home of Col. Edward M. House, confidante of the late President Woodrow Wilson and frequent political advisor to Gov. Roosevelt.

Wall Streeters Clean House

—By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER—

Here's how they clean up Wall Street, where a membership is better than a license to steal.

They walk up to a brother trader and say, "take a vacation, will you, so we can suspend you for the summer."

One bear was laid off the stock exchange because they caught him counting his profits instead of weighing them on a hay scale.

Now, everything is all set for the return of the public. The brokers have demonstrated they can shower one million yards of ticker tape on distinguished visitors without affecting the market.

They would like to shower another million yards on John Sucker.

Land at the Battery, walk up Wall Street behind a band and see what happens.

READ AND FRIEND HELD FOR KIDNAPING WIFE

DEATH AND HAVOC ON WINGS OF STORM

RESCUE OF COL. SLATER ENRICHES POOR WOMAN

BROKER DENIES ABDUCTING HER; MATE FLEES

Woman Suing Claire Windsor, Film Actress, for $100,000, and Spouse for Divorce

Placerville, Cal., May 27 (AP)—Reconciliation, not abduction, was the explanation given today by Alfred C. Read, Jr., for bringing his estranged wife, Mrs. Marian Read, here from Oakland.

In the Eldorado County jail, the broker, whose young and attractive wife has sued Claire Windsor, actress, for alienation of affections and Read for divorce, denied he abducted his wife at the point of a gun. He protested he did not force her to accompany him on a wild motor car ride to this mountain town.

ABDUCTION CHARGED

In a nearby hotel Mrs. Read rested before returning to her parents' home in Oakland. She insisted her husband "kidnaped" her, and declar he was aided by friends.

Mrs. Read vanished from in front of the Oakland home of J. W. Decker, an automobile salesman, Wednesday night. She drove into Placerville yesterday in an automobile she told authorities was used by her husband in "carrying her off." She said she escaped from Read and a man companion, Stewart Trumbauer, as they slept by the mountain roadside. Trumbauer also is in jail.

PAIR FORCED TO WALK

The men were arrested by Sheriff Charles F. Wood at the request of Oakland authorities. He found the men, weary and footsore, walking towards Placerville.

Sheriff Wood said Read was carrying a pistol and admitted forcing his wife to accompany him.

"He said he thought if he could get her up here away from everything," Sheriff Wood added, "he could talk her out of divorcing him."

Mrs. Read told officers her husband tried "his sales talk" on her in an attempt to persuade her to drop a $100,000 alienation suit against Miss Windsor and her divorce suit, in which she named the actress. She declared she would do neither.

Two Women Fliers Compete With Men

Omaha, Neb., May 27 (AP)—Two women fliers, one blonde and the other brunette, held the attention of spectators today as the second annual Omaha air races were opened with a deadstick landing contest.

Mrs. Betty Lund, slender and blonde, and Mrs. Rhoda Davis, slim and brunette, are the fliers. For the first time in the history of air racing, these two women will compete on equal terms with male pilots.

They have been matched for a foot race at a veterans' meeting at Kearney, July 4.

ONE INJURED AT BROOKLINE FIRE

A fireman was injured and four persons were driven from their homes today when fire swept an unoccupied house in Addington rd., Brookline.

Lieut. Frank Malley of Ladder 2 suffered a possible fractured collar bone and numerous cuts and bruises as he fought the fire on the third floor.

The blaze was discovered by Mrs. Louis M. Speyer, wife of a Boston Symphony Orchestra musician. The couple fled their home next door to the burning house, as did Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Williams, who live in the Speyer house.

The burned house has been vacant for four years but was being made ready for occupancy. Firemen estimated damage at $15,000.

TROLLEY SLASH IN WORCESTER

Wages of the Worcester Consolidated Street Railway employes will be cut by the new management of the road, which took control today after the purchase price of $1,500,000 offered by the bondholders' committee was approved by Judge Hugh D. McLellan in Federal court.

Announcement of the wage slash was made by Atty. Abraham Berkowitz of Boston, counsel for the committee, which took over management from Daniel W. Lincoln and Clark V. Wood of Worcester, receivers appointed in December, 1930.

U. S. AIDING IN MURDER PROBE

Rockport, May 27—United States postal inspectors are expected to step into the hunt for the slayers of Arthur F. Oker, wealthy tailor, who was beaten to death with a hatchet.

Postal authorities in Boston revealed they were investigating the disappearance of a registered mail package, receipt of which Oker signed for a few minutes before he was slain.

Police are now satisfied that two men were involved in the slaying. State Detectives William J. Murray and Richard Griffin said today it was their opinion that one man held Oker while the other clubbed him with a hatchet.

Two silverware salesmen arrested in the investigation were freed last night after they were questioned by Police Chief John E. Sullivan.

Presbyterians May Demand Dry Stand

Beaver, Pa., May 27 (AP)—Indications today are that a stand on prohibition will be molded for presentation to major national party conventions by the United Presbyterian Church of the United States in its 74th general assembly here.

Commissioners intimated the matter would be discussed when the committee on reforms reports Monday.

Paris, May 27 (AP)—Georges Ramettes, just elected Communist deputy for Douai, has to serve 18 months in jail before he can take his seat.

Deputy Ramettes was under arrest for indulging in anarchist propaganda when he was elected. His lawyer has petitioned for his release, invoking a case in which a prisoner was freed when elected Communist deputy from St. Denis.

SOCIETY GIRL PAYS FINE

Miss Isabella H. Lee, 18, who was fined $10 in Newton court today on a charge of speeding. Her sister, Lucy H. Lee, 17, a student at Beaver Country Day School, who was arrested next day, was also fined $10. They are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Lee of Wellesley.

Bathtub Accident Legend Exploded by Insurance Co.

New York, May 27 (INS)—Bathtubs were whitewashed today.

The legend that they cause the bulk of accidents in homes was dispelled by results of a survey conducted by an insurance company.

It was found that out of 2317 falls reported in homes, only 19 were blamed on bathtubs, or the slipperiness of soap used while in one.

Youth Grilled in Honor Death Case

Pawtucket, May 27 (AP)—An 18-year-old Pawtucket senior high school boy was picked up by police today for questioning in connection with the killing of John Rusolevitch, 58-year-old Seekonk, Mass., farmhand.

The questioning of the boy today followed a long period of questioning yesterday of an older man, living on the same street as the boy.

2 SISTERS FINED FOR SPEEDING

Two Wellesley sisters caught speeding in the same car on successive days were fined $10 each in Newton court today. Both were driving about 45 miles an hour at the same place, Beacon st. and Jordan rd.

On May 18 Motorcycle Officer Hammill overhauled Isabella H. Lee, 18, of Grove st., Wellesley, a Cambridge librarian. The next day Patrolman Kilmain halted Lucy H. Lee, 17, her sister.

The girls are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Lee, social registerites, and are well known in the younger set of Boston society.

2 Dead, Several Hurt, Toll of First Thunder Storm

Two persons dead and a number injured was the toll of Greater Boston's first real thunder storm of the season—a storm that caused a property damage estimated at $50,000.

Chimneys, flagpoles, trees and wires were blasted by sharp bolts of lightning during the reign of the storm, which broke a two-day heat wave.

The dead are:

Doyle, David J., 26, of 8 Orchardfield st., Dorchester.

Mann, Robert C., 10, of 2 Faulkner circle, Dorchester.

The injured:

Pratt, Maurice, 36, of 61 James st., Malden, injured by flying debris at Lawson boatyard, Dorchester.

O'Hara, John P., 43, of 200 Norfolk ave., Roxbury, burned by live wire in front of 9 Sherwood st., Roxbury.

Timson, Arthur, 43, of 15 Wendall rd., Nahant, cut by flying glass at 480 Atlantic ave.

Bruce, Ernest, 18, of Malden, struck by lightning while working at 170 Oliver st., Boston.

Doyle and Mann were killed instantly when a terrific gust of wind tore a wooden shed to pieces at Lawson's boatyard, Freeport st., Dorchester, hurling five heavy beams through a sea sled under which the two had sought shelter from the rain.

Two others, Walter Baker, 10, of 17 Faulkner st., Dorcester, and John F. Kirkland of Wheatland ave., Dorchester, an employe in the boatyard, narrowly escaped death.

Doyle, Kirkland and the two boys, who had been playing at the water's edge with toy boats, sought shelter under the sea sled during the downpour.

Pratt was injured while working on his boat in the boatyard.

MARIE IN CLASH WITH LUPESCU

Vienna, May 27 (INS)—A dramatic conflict between the Dowager Queen Marie of Rumania and Mme. Magda Lupescu, favorite of King Carol II, was reported in dispatches from Bucharest today.

The crisis arose when Carol announced he would spend the summer with Mme. Lupescu at Kimpolung castle in the Carpathian mountains.

Queen Marie attempted to persuade the king to pass the summer months at Sinaia on the Black Sea, where Princess Ileana, now the wife of Archduke Anton of Hapsburg, is awaiting the arrival of her first baby.

Finding the king adamant, Queen Marie went to Mme. Lupescu, but her pleas and threats were in vain.

VANDALS LOOT VETS' GRAVES

Lynn war veterans are aroused as a result of desecration of flags over veterans' graves in two cemeteries. Fourteen flags were torn to shreds in the Eastern Burial Ground, Union st., and 100 flags were stolen from the Pine Grove Cemetery.

The flags were placed over the graves of war veterans last Saturday in order that everything would be in readiness for Memorial Day.

New York, May 27—Mrs. Mary E. Lapham, who died November 7, 1930, in Santa Barbara, Cal., left an estate valued at $3,756,063 gross and $3,530,014 net, according to a transfer tax appraisal filed.

Her son, Henry G. Lapham, of Boston, Mass., receives a legacy of $300,000 and the residuary estate after the distribution of more than $484,000 to 18 other legatees.

Rebecca Lounsbery, of Brookline, Mass., receives $100,000 in trust. Katheryn E. L. Saltonstall and Raymond W. Lapham, also of Brookline, receive $50,000 each. The latter also receives a $95,000 pearl necklace. This he is to give to a child of his if he has any; if not it reverts to the estate. Two cousins, Carl Sherman, of Crawford, Kan., and Elizabeth S. Rineheimer, of Elgin, Ill., each receive

ROBERT MANN

DAVID DOYLE

David Doyle, 26, of Orchardfield st., and Robert Mann, 10, of Faulkner Circle, Dorchester, were killed in the severe storm yesterday. The two ran for the cabin of a boat in the yard when the storm broke and were killed when timbers scattered from the roof of the boat shop by a lightning bolt crashed through the roof of the craft.

PEASANT GETS FORTUNE AND CHATEAU

Called Police to Aid Pawtucket Man Thrown in Dungeon by Conspirators

Paris, May 27 (INS)—A simple act of kindness has brought wealth and comfort to to a once poor peasant girl of France.

When Col. Samuel Slater, 71, formerly of Pawtucket, R. I., where he and his people made a fortune in the milling business, died May 12 this year, a surprising provision was discovered in his will.

The Chateau de la Roserie near Vichy, where he died, was left to Rose Danton-Durand. His fortune, which was not very large at the time of his death, was bequeathed to Mme. Durand.

THROWN INTO DUNGEON

The story of how Mme. Durant earned the gratitude of Col. Slater dates back to 1912 when he was made the victim of an audacious plot. Col. Slater was none too robust and this enabled the conspirators to carry on their scheme. He was seized one day in his chateau by his housekeeper and her husband and imprisoned in a crudely improvised dungeon.

Threats against his life were continually made to force him to sign checks for large sums of money.

Col. Slater was somewhat of a mystery man. The chateau was surrounded by a high fence and guarded by fierce dogs. People of the countryside began after a time to ask what had happened to the strange old man who occupied the castle-like home.

The housekeeper and her husband told the country people that he had gone to America.

SEES HAND SIGNAL

One day Rose Danton, then unmarried, came along the road and stopped and peered curiously through the fence at the chateau. While she was looking she was startled to see a white hand signalling to her from behind a barred window in the cellar.

She ran hurriedly home and related the incident to her mother who in turn told the police. The chateau was searched by police and Col. Slater was released from his cellar dungeon.

The conspirators were arrested and given long imprisonment.

BECOMES HOUSEKEEPER

Col. Slater believed the young peasant woman had saved him from a lingering death at the hands of his captors. She later married and then became housekeeper at the chateau.

Mme. Durand's inheritance, aside from the chateau, is not very large. The bulk of Col. Slater's wealth existed in a trust fund which now has reverted to his family in the United States. His next nearest kin, according to Paris legal representatives, is the socially prominent Mrs. Charles A. Washburn of Worcester and Boston, Mass.

HEALTH BOARD DEFIES MAYOR IN MALDEN

Despite Mayor William A. Hasting's action in shutting off the pay of three board of health nurses in Malden commencing June 1, Dr. Carroll C. Burpee, chairman of the board, announced today that the nurses would not be discharged nor would the health clinics which they operate be closed.

The board voted that to close the three clinics conducted by the board would be a serious menace to health.

Members claim that under the statutes the board has full power to take action in matters affecting the public health and that the city government will be obliged to appropriate the funds with which to defray the costs of the work.

Mrs. Cora Kelliher, Miss Margaret McQuaid and Mrs. Sadie E. Hogg are the three nurses in charge of the clinics and they were notified today of the board's action and received orders to cantinue their work.

GIRL IS DYING; 2 ARRESTED IN A SURGERY CASE

Arrested at the bedside of a dying girl, Francis J. Bowes, 23, of Summer st., Melrose, in Chelsea court today was held in $5000 as an accessory to illegal surgery.

Mrs. Mary Lenedsky of Bellingham st., Chelsea, charged with performing the illegal surgery, was held in a like amount, by Judge Cutler, who continued the case until June 10.

The girl is at City Hospital, where her name is on the danger list. She is Miss Martha Bradley of Mt. Vernon st., Dorchester, said to be a telephone operator.

According to police, although informed she was dying, she refused to make any statement or assist the authorities.

A watch was then set, and police say Bowes visited the hospital and was arrested when he was taken to Miss Bradley's bedside. The arrest of Mrs. Lenedsky folloowed.

Chicago Dog-Soother Not Onto His Job, Neighbors Claim

Chicago, May 27 (AP)—A dog-soother who gets paid for his work has been found in Chicago.

When dogs wake up at night and howl it's his duty to pat their heads, bring them a drink of water, rearrange their beds and keep them quiet.

His existence was revealed by Mrs. Dorothy Eagles, owner of an animal shelter, who was in court to answer a charge of maintaining a nuisance. W. C. Spaulding, complainant, said Mrs. Eagles' dog boarders make so much noise that he and his wife had "very little sleep since February."

"The dogs," said Mrs. Eagles, "are not a nuisance at all. I keep one man on duty with them all night to keep them contented."

Judge Borelli reached no decision pending a further hearing.

Chickens Convict Two Men of Theft

Douglas, Ga., May 27 (AP)—Newt Carver knows his chickens and Newt Carver's chickens know their roosts.

When Newt saw three fowls in a shop, he didn't say anything; just bought the chickens. He took them home and watched them at roosting time. One went to the henhouse, another flew into a tree and the third sought her old place in another tree. So a father and son were convicted of chicken stealing.

HEALTH UNIT TO COST $299,000 IS AWARDED

Matthew J. Cummings was today awarded a contract for construction of the new Roxbury health unit of the George Robert White Fund, at a cost of $299,000, by Mayor Curley.

The building is to be erected on land purchased by the city recently on the site bounded by Downing, Vernon, Hampshire and Whittier sts., Roxbury.

The structure, a five-story affair, including basement, will be constructed of red brick and limestone and will be designed in the Georgian period.

Dental, pre-natal and baby clinics will be housed there, as will offices for nurses. An auditorium equipped with movie machines will occupy a section of the second floor, and on the fourth will be a large glass enclosed area to be used as classrooms for children of pre-school age.

GIRL, 8, AT PLAY KILLS CHUM, 10

Toledo, O., May 27 (INS)—An 8-year-old girl shot and killed her playmate in a game of "cowboy and Indians" today and then, driven to despair by remorse, tried vainly to drown herself.

June Welker, 10, was the victim. Alice Spaniscewski, a neighbor, shot her through the head with a pistol the children found behind a picture in Alice's home.

After the tragedy, Alice ran to a nearby creek and threw herself in. Mrs. George Vanderburg, a neighbor, rescued her.

The shooting was witnessed by the victim's brother, Layton, 6.

Tariff Adjustment Bill Is Rejected

Washington, May 27 (AP)—The Hawley bill for an upward adjustment in tariff rates against nations with depreciated money was rejected today by the House ways and means committee by a 16 to 9 vote.

Acting Chairman Crisp said party lines were split on the ballot. The Treasury Department declined to make any recommendation regarding the Hawley bill.

CUTTER OFF TO AID TRAWLER OFF CAPE

The fishing trawler Dartmouth of Boston was disabled with engine trouble today in a thick fog 175 miles southeast of Boston, according to distress messages received from the craft.

The Coast Guard cutter Agassiz started to her aid. Unless the engine trouble can be remedied, the Dartmouth will be towed to Provincetown or to Boston.

Teddy Hayes Ousted by Lina Basquette

Hollywood, May 27 (INS)—Because he "circulated a rumor about a romance between Jack Dempsey and me," Lina Basquette, screen actress, today dismissed Teddy Hayes, trainer of boxers, as her business manager.

Miss Basquette declared she and Dempsey were "good friends only."

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

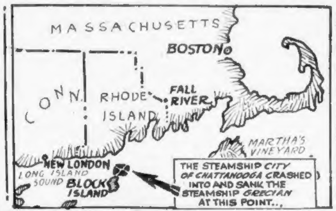
Divorce Granted After 30 Years

Salem, May 27—Thirty years of married life came to an end for Frederick A. Taylor of Lynn, when Judge Harry R. Dow of Essex Probate Court, awarded a divorce decree nisi on the ground of desertion from Mrs. Edith M. Taylor of Cambridge.

WHERE CRASH OCCURRED



Map of the southern coast of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, showing where the liners Grecian and City of Chattanooga collided early today, taking the lives of four of the Grecian's crew.

FREIGHTER RAMMED IN FOG, 4 PERISH; 32 RESCUED

Guard destroyer Abel P. Upshur, reached the scene.

There still remained, however, the necessity for treatment of the injured and the search for the dead. In a small boat launched by the destroyer, Chief Boatswain Devine and Pharmacist Mate Brenning when to the passenger liner and gave first aid to the injured.

The Upshur, starting her search for the four missing men while it still was dark, recovered the first of the bodies at 7 a. m.

Another was found shortly afterward. Two were reported identified as Edward Forest, assistant chief engineer, of Portsmouth, Va., and Charles Crowley, steward, of Providence. The others lost were Zamory Lowes of Portsmouth, Va., a seaman, and James Merriweather of Philadelphia, a messman.

RUSHED TO HOSPITAL

The Upshur transferred the bodies to the patrol boat CG-405, which proceeded to New London, while the Upshur and the destroyers MacDougal and Porter continued search for the fourth body. The sea was strewn with wreckage, an overturned lifeboat and freight.

Meanwhile the City of Chattanooga, proceeding at a snail's pace because of poor visibility and her own damage, radioed Commdr. Roderick W. Patch of the Woods Hole coast guard base requesting a patrol boat to take off the two seriously injured men and rush them to the United States Marine Hospital in Vineyard Haven.

Commdr. Patch immediately dispatched two patrol boats which took up positions off Bell 18, outside the entrance to Woods Hole harbor. Thick and heavy weather delayed the contact between them and the City of Chattanooga.

The Grecian's crew personnel changed often and no complete roster of those rescued was available.

Only meager details of the disaster were available. Boston agencies of the two steamship lines involved, the Merchants & Miners and the Savannah, said they were without details and did not know the number of passengers and crew aboard the City of Chattanooga

MOVING IN SLOWLY

There was a possibility that the Chattanooga, which was due here at 4 o'clock this afternoon, would debark all passengers at Woods Hole to proceed to Boston by train.

The vessel was making slow progress from the scene of the collision, because of her damages and continued poor visibility, and was not expected to reach Boston until midnight.

Conditions aboard the passenger liner following the crash were not described in the cryptic radiograms reaching shore.

The Upshur and the freighter William C. Atwater, answering the wireless appeals of the City of Chattanooga, searched until long after daybreak in the vicinity of the disaster.

Comparatively shoal water over a bank five miles north of Block Island, which is 10 miles off the Rhode Island coast, was the scene of the collision.

The masts of the sunken Grecian were reported to be showing above the surface. The spot is not far from the scene of the collision between the City of Rome and the U. S. Submarine S-51 in 1925.

BOTH ON BOSTON TRIPS

The Grecian, of the Merchants & Miners' Line, left Boston for Norfolk at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The City of Chattanooga, one of the Savannah line's crack boats, left New York for Boston yesterday on the last leg of her voyage from Savannah.

Capt. H. E. Collis of Baltimore was in command of the Grecian. He was rescued. Capt. Henry Borum is master of the City of Chattanooga.

Five cryptic wireless messages from the City of Chattanooga told of the disaster and the progress of rescue work. All were picked up by Massachusetts shore stations of the coast guard. The first was:

"At about 1:50 a. m., (E. S. T.) we struck the steamer Grecian and she sank in a few minutes off Block Island. We anchored. Crew and passengers all right."

A few minutes later:

"We are blowing three blasts at intervals and searching for members of the crew not yet rescued with lights and boats."

HUNT FOR VICTIMS

At 3:33 o'clock the Chattanooga, answering an inquiry from the steamer Ontario, said:

"We do not need any assistance. The master of the Grecian is safe aboard the City of Chattanooga. The damage to our ship is unknown but considered slight. Four members of the Grecian's crew still unaccounted for. The United States cutter Upshur has arrived and is assisting in the search for the missing men."

A few minutes later the Chattanooga wirelessed:

"To all ships in the vicinity of Block Island: Please watch for survivors."

The last message was direct from the passenger ship to the Upshur:

"Have you a doctor aboard?"

The sunken vessel, which was built in 1900 and is 263 feet long, arrived in Baltimore from Norfolk on May 22 and sailed the same day for Boston. She plied between this city, Philadelphia and Norfolk. In the summer months she was used for both passengers and freight but at this time of the year she was used solely as a freighter.

It was doubtful whether any attempt would be made to raise the Grecian.

Although the scene of the collision is in the area under jurisdiction of the Providence district of the Federal steamboat inspection service, it was believed possible that testimony of the survivors may be taken by local inspectators Capts. Haines, Stewart and Lyons.

CRASH VICTIMS ALL IDENTIFIED

The best available crew list of the Grecian that officials of the Merchants & Miners Transportation Co. could furnish listed H. E. Collis of Norfolk, master of the sunken vessel.

Other officers listed by the company were S. W. Dix, first officer; J. R. Touchton, second officer; T. E. Allen, third officer; E. S. Smith, chief engineer, and J. R. Davis, E. L. Forrest, J. P. Barber and Mortimer Jones, assistant engineers, and Charles Crowley of Providence, steward.

Others in the crew were David Collins of Norfolk, Clarence Walker of Savannah, Eddie Love of Norfolk and Thomas McMillan of North Carolina, firemen; Albert Jennings of Baltimore, a man named "Tiny," Thomas Notty, Zamry Lowes, sailors, and James Merriweather, messboy.

Forrest, Crowley, Lowes and Merriweather are dead.

Charles Crowley, steward of the Grecian and one of the victims, was 52 and had been a steward with the Merchants & Miners line for years.

He was single and lived for some years in the Smith Hill section of Providence, but for some time has had no permanent home ashore, spending most of his time on shipboard.

A brother, James A. Crowley, who lives at 99 Ruggles st., Providence, is a member of hose company 12 of the Providence fire department, and a sister, Mrs. Michael Murphy, lives at 225 Power st., Providence.

HOOVER TARIFF BARRIERS HIT BY BOWERS

Washington, May 27—The "stupidity" of the Hoover administration in raising tariff barriers against the world is responsible for the nation's economic plight, in the opinion of Claude G. Bowers, historian and newspaper man.

In a radio address over a National Broadcasting Company Network, Bowers said the United States must lead the way in lowering trade barriers to stimulate world trade.

TO REVIVE TRADE.

"We want American capital spent on American factories, to give wages to American workingmen, who will spend it with American merchants.

He added:

"We want to revive the international trade of America and lift the brooding silence of America's greatest ports.

"In these days when a lack of trade has poured 8,000,000 bread winners on the street and destroyed the purchasing power of 30,000,000 people, an enlightened statesmanship of vision and courage calls for affirmative action to regain the customers we have lost. That is the Democratic program—a program that every intelligent economist must and will aprove."

APPEAL FOR BONDS

A spirited appeal for a great public works program financed by a federal bond issue was also broadcast by Mrs. Catherine Filene Dodd of the Woman's Democratic National Club.

Outlining the public works program set forth by Speaker Garner, Senator Robinson, Alfred E. Smith and William Randolph Hearst, she said:

"The authorship of the suggested measure is unimportant. These men are among the most noted authorities on government."

Only a $5,000,000,000 federal bond issue for a public works program will bring about a business revival or employment increase to save the country from imminent danger of a widespread disorder if not a revolution, the Rev. John A. Ryan, noted economist, warned in another radio address.

STARR FAITHFUL POSER SUICIDE

New York, May 27 (AP)—Rex Fairbanks, prince of make-believe adventures, is finally embarked on a real adventure.

The 28-year-old clerk, whose strange complex of greatness led him to play imaginary parts in every great mystery case and to believe himself heir to mythical millions, dressed himself in silks and turned on the gas.

Fairbanks gloried in the role of "millionaire witness" in the investigation of the Starr Faithfull mystery death, although he never knew the woman. He enjoyed the part of rich playboy, but there was no money to back up his claims.

A simple note advising the undertaker to notify his estranged wife, Peffy, was all that was found.

Bromley Plans New Hop Across Pacific

Dallas, Tex., May 27 (AP)—Harold Bromley left Love Field here at 4:45 a. m., C. S. T., today on a non-stop flight to New York in preparation for an attempt to fly from Seattle, Wash., to Tokio.

The flier, who failed previously in an attempt to span the Pacific, is piloting a new wing monoplane equipped with an oil burning engine.

Maryland Votes Pledged to Hoover

Baltimore, May 27 (AP)—A Republican delegation favoring the nomination of President Hoover and uninstructed on the prohibition question will represent Maryland at the national convention. Maryland has 19 votes.

Divorce Looms Unless Mate Is on Your Radio Wave

Paris, May 27 (INS)—Discover your radio wave before marriage and avoid divorce, is the advice given to prospective brides and grooms by Dr. H. Moineau, French scientist.

According to Dr. Monieu, a radio wave emanates from the body of every human being. Some toss out polar waves while others send equitorial waves into the ether. If a polar wave person marries an equitorial wave person, sparks are sure to fly. Mutual distrust will follow and the divorce courts will no doubt find two new customers.

But if two polar wave persons marry the usual but inevitably predicted happy ending is sure to follow. All of which of course leads to the obvious comment that a prospective groom should tune in on his light of love before asking the fatal question to see what kind of a radio wave she emanates.

Carrying it a step further, one may look forward to the time when divorces will be granted on the grounds that a mate has the wrong kind of a wave.

NATIONS SPLIT ON OFFENSIVE ARMAMENTS

Geneva, Switzerland, May 27 (AP)—A report containing many divergent views on the question of what weapons are most offensive was adopted today by the naval commission of the disarmament conference.

The report showed not only that the great powers differed among themselves, but also held views on the most important points contrary to those of the small powers.

NATIONS AT ODDS.

The American delegation described the submarine as a specifically offensive weapon, and considered battleships and aircraft-carriers to be defensive. Britain and Japan agreed with the United States on battleships, but most of the smaller nations denounced them as offensive arms.

Japan defended submarines and denounced aircraft carriers. Argentina regarded battleships as offensive, but in geenral indorsed the position of the United States and Britain on the question of aircraft carriers.

AGREE IN PRINCIPLE

The American and French military experts have reached an agreement in principle on the American proposals for determining military defense requirements along the general lines embodied in the treaties written at the conclusion of the World War in which limitations are set on the armed strength of the Central powers.

Kidnaped Girl Calls for Aid

Chariton, Ia., May 27 (AP)—Authorities were confronted with the possibility of a new kidnaping mystery today when a note thrown from a speeding car was recovered at an oil station six miles east of here.

The message read:

"Help me. I am in trouble. I am in the hands of some horrible men. Five men. Three women. My age is 15. June Stone."

The scrap of paper bore the letterhead of a Des Moines firm.

10-Inch Snow Kills Myriads of Menacing Grasshoppers

St. Paul, May 27 (AP)—Winter returned for a curtain-call in the Northwest, and farmers stood up and gave it a great big hand.

It wasn't that they were happy to see newly-sprouted crops covered with up to 10 inches of snow which came yesterday in sections of North Dakota. But it meant that they had enlisted a forceful ally in their fight on a serious invasion of grasshoppers.

Sensitive young hoppers, emerging from soil when they have just hatched, were incapable, entomologists said, of surviving the blast of cold which drove down temperatures and brought chilling rains and snow over a wide area.

Aberdeen, S. D., reported a drop of 30 degrees from Wednesday to Thursday with temperatures in the Dakotas and Minnesota generally ranging from 35 to 45 degrees. At Jamestown, N. D., 10 inches of snow was reported.

RECTOR IN HER ROOM ALL NIGHT

London, May 27 (INS)—The common code of morals does not apply to clergymen, the Rev. Harold Francis Davidson, 60, rector of Stiffkey Church, Norfolk, declared under cross-examination during his trial in Consistory Court today on charges of improper conduct.

His observation came during questioning by Roland Oliver, prosecuting attorney, concerning a night alleged to have been spent in the bedroom of Barbara Harris, 19, tea-shop waitress.

"Don't think that because you are in a girl's room at five minutes to 12 it becomes immoral at five minutes past 12," the rector said.

"As a clergyman one spends one's whole life in bedrooms."

13 Prefer Poison Ivy to Classroom

Edgewater, N. J., May 27 (AP)—Going to school is worse than poison ivy to some youngsters here. Dr. Charles F. Buckley reported to the board of education that he had found 13 schoolboys who had rubbed themselves with the irritating leaves so they could absent themselves from classes.

"Golden Rule City"

New York, May 27 (AP)—The Golden Rule city for 1932 is Berea, Ky., which was chosen by the Golden Rule Foundation for the most effective observance of Golden Rule week.

MOTHER NAMES DOUMER KILLER

Moscow, May 27 (AP)—Moscow newspapers said today the mother of Dr. Paul Gorgulov identified a picture of the assassin of Paul Doumer of France published in French newspapers as that of her son.

The 82-year-old woman lives in the village of Labinsky, in Southwest Russia. Sometime ago she was classified as a kulak (rich peasant) and her property was seized by the Soviet government.

Other residents of the village who knew Gorgulov also identified the picture, the report said, and denounced the act as "traitorous."

Driver Too Big for Baby Car; Loses Job

Mexico City, May 27 (AP)—The Labor Court needs a Solomon.

A chauffeur charged he had been discharged without justification. Testimony developed that the car owner had sold his large car and bought a "baby" automobile. The chauffeur is more than six feet tall, and when he gets into the tiny car there is little room left for the owner.

Ontario Forest Fires Are Checked

BOND ISSUE AND BEER TAX CURE FOR SLUMP

New York, May 27 (US)—Merryle Stanley Rukeyser, noted economist and financial expert for Universal Service, in a radio broadcast over Station WINS, New York, called for immediate adoption by Congress of policies which he said would hasten the "return of prosperity"—which was the title of his address.

The chief means advocated by Mr. Rukeyser were:

Passage of a $5,000,000,000 "Prosperity" bond issue for public works; passage of a systematic, rational tax law to include a widely diffused manufacturers' sales tax, and an excise tax on legalized light wines and beer; a trade building banking policy with ample credit expansion; and effective farm relief, not only to relieve the farmer's condition, but to restore him as a purchaser of manufactured products and hence help create employment.

IMPROVEMENT NEAR

Mr. Rukeyser said, in part:

"If Congress will do the necessary things promptly, there is evidence that the economic situation is ready to improve. There has recently been a promising cessation of the decline in bank deposits, which may herald the end of deflation. Current individual bank debits, which reflect business activity, have been showing a greater than seasonal gain from last month's low level.

"The need is for a bond issue of sufficient magnitude to act as a lever to turn the economic tides. Congress should forthwith dramatize the return to normal conditions by authorizing a $5,000,000,000 prosperity loan for social reconstruction and for the re-employment of the idle. The American people are again ready to 'borrow and buy'—this time not to kill Germans, but to restore the self respect and the opportunity to prosper of millions of deserving fellow citizens.

"In planning for a managed recovery, the first of four necessary steps is the prosperity loan.

LEGALIZE BEER

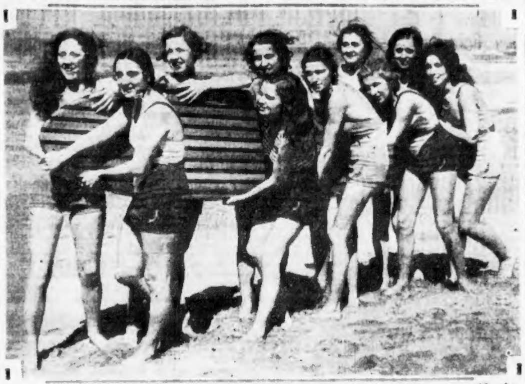
"The second is the prompt passage of a rational, systematic tax law, which will include a widely diffused manufacturers' sales tax, and an excise tax on light wines and beer, which should be legalized.

"Prohibition, it has been estimated, is depriving the federal government of a billion dollars a year in revenue from the liquor trade, and the states and local subdivisions of half a billion.

"The third needed step is a trade building banking policy, in place of the ruinous blizzard of deflation of the last nine months. We are already in the midst of a bold open market credit expansion policy by the Federal Reserve System, which offers genuine promise.

"The fourth is effective farm relief, designed to raise agricultural prices and to arrest the pauperization of the farmer through temporary governmental regulation looking forward to getting a reasonable price for farm products sold for home consumption."

FAIR HANDLERS OF HUGE SURFBOARD



They use the large surfboard now on the coast of Southern California. This huge one, introduced at the Hollywood Riviera Club at Redondo Beach, near Los Angeles, Cal., is being rushed to the water by a crew of 10 pretty mermaids, two of whom can ride the board at one time. The big boards made for multiple surf riding are beautifully polished affairs of laminated wood. (International News Photos.)

Fined and Jailed on Liquor Charge

Portland, Me., May 27 (AP)—Albert Drollett of Lawrence, Mass., was held in $2400 bail and Willie Theberge, also of Lawrence, was fined $400 and sentenced to five months in jail on liquor charges today.

They were arrested after police found 30 gallons of alcohol in their automobile.

English Farmers Lectured by Prince at County Fair

Yeovil, Somerset, Eng., May 27 (AP)—The Prince of Wales, here to attend the county fair, where he is exhibiting a Devon heifer, read a lecture on efficient production today to an audience of farmers.

"A couple of cutlets for mother has replaced the great joints of beef that used to be eaten with relish by the family on the Sabbath," he said. "It seems to me we still are producing goods that were suitable in England 30 years ago—big cheeses and big joints of meat."

Fear Plane Bearing Wreck Survivors Lost

Nice, May 27 (AP)—Police are investigating a report that a plane carrying five persons, two of them passengers rescued from the French ship Georges Philippar, burned two weeks ago in the Gulf of Aden, had crashed in the mountains near Brignoles, France, on the way to Marseilles. The plane left Brindisi, Italy, Wednesday afternoon and has not been heard of since.

Akron Will Start Home Early in June

Lakehurst, N. J., May 27 (AP)—Lieut.-Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, commander of the navy dirigible Akron, in a message to the naval air station today indicated that the Akron would be ready to start on her homeward journey from the Pacific Coast June 3 or 4.

The message said the Akron will participate in exercises with the scouting force.

MANY ATTEND CURLEY RITES

Judges, attorneys and Chelsea city officials attended today the funeral of Joseph M. Curley, for 40 years clerk of Chelsea district court, held from his home at 147 Garfield ave., Chelsea.

Services, with a solemn high mass of requiem, were held in the Church of Our Lady of Grace, with the Rev. Thomas A. Walsh celebrant, the Rev. Thomas L. Boland deacon and the Rev. Edward V. Hart deacon.

Judge Michael H. Murray of municipal court and Judges Samuel Cutler, George Stearns and Roscoe Walsworth were included among the mourners.

Pallbearers were Mayor Quigley of Chelsea, Metropolitan District Commissioner Melvin B. Breath, former Asst. Dist. Atty. Maurice Caro, Representative Augustine Ariola, Attorney Edward J. Voke, Court Officer John F. Sullivan of Chelsea court, former Representative Frank D. Crowley, Acting Court Clerk Edward F. Canavan of Chelsea court and Eben Hutchinson.

Burial was in Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden.

Farm Relief Vote Blocked by Reed

Washington, May 27 (AP)—Senator Reed (R.), Pennsylvania, blocked an attempt in the Senate today to obtain an agreement to vote on farm relief legislation before the adjournment of Congress.

Senator Nye (R.), South Dakota, has asked for an agreement that the Senate would not adjourn until it had voted on the McNary omnibus relief bill and the Frazier refinance measure.

MAY CLEAR BAR AT WEYMOUTH

Washington, May 27 (AP)—Modification of the Weymouth back river, Massachusetts, project to provide a 15-foot channel 250 feet wide through the bar at the mouth of the river was recommended to Congress today by Maj.-Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of army engineers.

The general recommended the width then be generally 200 feet to the downstream end of the American Agricultural Chemical Company's wharf, with a turning basin 350 feet wide and 400 feet long at its inner end. The estimated cost was $60,000, with maintenance $700 annually, conditional that local interests contribute $20,000 to the cost and furnish disposal areas for dredge materials.

Noted Screen Writer Drowns, Swimming

Hollywood, May 27 (INS)—Hollywood today mourned Joseph Jackson, 38, noted screen writer, drowned while swimming at Laguna Beach.

His wife, the former Ethel Shannon, actress, witnessed the tragedy.

Jackson wrote the script and dialogue for "Fifty Million Frenchmen," "Smart Money" and others.

Nova Scotia Miners Take Cut, Go to Work

Glace Bay, N. S., May 27 (AP)—Collieries of Nova Scotia were hoisting coal today, free from the threat of strike for the first time in eight money.

Yesterday the miners accepted wage reductions of ten per cent for day workers and 12½ per cent for contract men.

UNITED HOTELS GET BRADFORD

By negotiations just completed the United Hotels chain interests have taken over the 15-story Bradford Hotel, formerly the Elks Hotel, and will begin actual management next Wednesday.

At a formal auction sale in the lobby yesterday, the last remaining routine matter before transfer of ownership to the United Hotels people, the Suffolk Savings Bank bought in the property in foreclosure of the $1,400,000 first mortgage it held.

The bank then proceeded towards transfer of the property and business to the United on a valuation basis of $2,000,000. The hotel's cost up to the time of its going into bankruptcy as the Elks Hotel, two years ago, was $3,500,000.

By Wednesday Roy L. Brown, managing director of the Hotel Bancroft in Worcester, a United hotel, will have assumed the office of vice-president of the new company and managing director of the hotel.

It was learned yesterday that the new company will have as its president Frank H. Dudley of Niagara Falls, N. Y., who is president of the United Hotels Company of America, and as its treasurer, Ronald G. Wright, an attorney, also of Niagara Falls.

Bank President Commits Suicide

Randolph, Vt., May 27—John H. Dubois, 54, president of the Randolph National Bank, shot himself in his office. A son, John H. Dubois, Jr., found his body.

He leaves a widow, a daughter, two sons and a brother.

Boy Drowns in Whirlpool

Cherryfield, Me., May 27—Ardid Morse, 17, was drowned in the Narragagus river while swimming. The youth was caught in a whirlpool and pulled under.

POLICE BLAMED FOR DEATHS

Haverhill, May 27—Charging that police were nearly four hours answering an emergency call, Arthur Georgaropoulos, owner of the house in which two women were found dead from monoxide poisoning, called for an investigation of the Haverhill police department. Medical Examiner Francis W. Anthony, who viewed the bodies, said the victims had not been dead more than two hours.

The two women, who were discovered dead in an apartment at 33 Cedar st. Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Florence Poulian, 38, of this city, and Mrs. Ernestine Tremblay, 39 of Nashua, N. H. Both fell asleep and a gas burner consumed all the oxygen in the room.

Georgaropoulos said that between 9:30 and 10 o'clock in the morning he went to the home of a woman living on Dover st., and called police. The woman corroborated his story and said that he made the call at 9:40 o'clock. He was told that officers would be sent immediately.

According to police records, no call was received until 1:08 that afternoon, when Harry Whittaker, who resides in the same house, called police. This time Patrolman James Snea was sent to the home.

Caller Dismantles Phone to Get Coin Back

Washington, May 27—If James Reilly puts a nickel in a telephone box, he gets his party or his money back.

After police found him tearing a telephone apart, he told the judge he had been given a wrong number and the nickel had not been returned. The judge also had obtained a few wrong numbers. He suspended sentence.

BURKE GRANTED DIVORCE

Salem, May 27—Leslie J. Burke, a Lynn building contractor, was granted a divorce decree nisi here from Mrs. Margaret N. Burke of Lynn by Judge Dow of the Essex County Probate Court. The decree was awarded on the ground of infidelity.

Testimony given at the hearing last Friday revealed that Mrs. Burke, a slender brunette, signed what was termed a confession last Dec. 30 when her husband, his mother and detectives found Ralph W. Delaney of Lynn in her apartment late at night. The confession was an admission that she had been guilty of improprieties with Delaney.

REVERE POLICE FACE SHAKEUP

Reorganization of the Revere police department may result from the trial of Lieut. Clair P. Chainey, who is charged with conduct unbecoming an officer, it was intimated today by Mayor Andrew A. Casassa of Revere. Trial of the lieutenant was finished last night and the mayor took the case under advisement.

The trial revealed that there are no rules and regulations in the department by which its members may govern themselves. Mayor Casassa admitted he was considering seeking an appropriation for the services of a police expert to reorganize the Revere force.

Lieut. Chainey, a World War and Spanish War veteran, has been a member of the Revere police since 1901.

Chainey is alleged to have procured a book of revolver permits from the state police office without authority.

"I ONLY REGRET THAT I HAVE BUT ONE LIFE TO LOSE FOR MY COUNTRY"

WHEN Nathan Hale on the scaffold uttered those brave words, what was the condition of the country? ☆ It had entered upon a life and death struggle for its independence. Before that struggle was over, its soldiers were "barefoot and almost naked." Its currency was so desperately inflated that a pair of shoes cost $100, a bushel of corn $40, a pound of tea $90, a barrel of flour $1,575. ☆ There were many "wise" people who predicted that the bankrupt colonies would never win. History has forgotten the names of those wise people. ☆ But history remembers Nathan Hale and George Washington and John Adams and Benjamin Franklin, and the others who never ceased to battle and to hope. ☆ Let us honor their memory on Memorial Day. Let us motor to the spots which their sacrifice made sacred. Let us renew our courage by the memory of their struggle, so much more desperate than ours can ever be. Let us be worthy of the country for which they gave their all.

HEARST STOCK TO PAY 7 P. C. DIVIDEND

San Francisco, May 27 (I.N.S.)—One of the bright spots on the financial calendar today was the announcement of the declaration of the eighth [illegible] cash dividend on the Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., Class "A" seven per cent cumulative participating preferred shares. This dividend which is at the rate of seven per cent per annum or $1.75 a share annually will be distributed to more than 31,000 investors on June 15.

The unleashing of this fresh supply of gold, the second [illegible] this year out of current earnings, will further fortify the buying power of thousands of communities and [illegible] between the Atlantic and Pacific waters.

AID TO INDUSTRY

From the earnings of the $1[illegible] 000,000 Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., which own 12 of the most valuable and profitable publishing enterprises of William Randolph Hearst, will come this welcome contribution toward the revival of American industry.

These 12 colossal sinews of Hearst Consolidated include:

New York Evening Journal, Chicago Evening American, San Francisco Examiner, Los Angeles Herald-Express, Detroit Times, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Los Angeles Examiner, Oakland Post-Enquirer, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, San Francisco Call-Bulletin and the American Weekly and American Newsprint Company.

COMMON STOCK PAYS

The epochal progress of Hearst Consolidated, during the past two and one-half years, has been one of the outstanding romances of American industry. Through all the vicissitudes of adverse times Hearst Consolidated has paid a steady stream of dividends to help alleviate conditions and employ thousands of workers.

In addition to the preferred dividend, the board of directors voted the usual quarterly payment of 43¾ cents on the common, payable June 15 to stock of record June 1.

To Wed Soon

Engagement of Miss Alba Faillace, of Brookline, to Antonio di Credico, of Dorchester, has been announced by Dr. and Mrs. Gaetano Faillace.

HUB CHARITY WORKER DIES

Miss Lillian A. Richards, for nearly 20 years connected with the Morgan Memorial, the last 15 years as field secretary of the woman's auxiliary, died today at the New England Hospital.

Miss Richards was widely known throughout the state through her activities with the branches of the auxiliary in several sections. Before coming to the Morgan Memorial she was engaged in religious work, establishing missions in Methuen and New Bedford.

She was a graduate of the New England Deaconess training school.

She leaves a brother, George F. Richards of the Boston Post editorial staff.

Services will be held Sunday at 2 p. m. in the Morgan Memorial Church of All Nations, Shawmut ave., with committal services at 4 p. m. in Bellevue Cemetery, Lawrence.

PETITION

TO THE CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES:

We, the undersigned citizens, believing that a Prosperity Loan bond issue of $5,000,000,000 for needed public works is the only economical, sound and certain relief for the unemployment problem, the only sure and quick way to relieve the business depression, and avoid greater suffering throughout the nation in this crisis, do hereby petition the Congress to enact the necessary legislation immediately.

(Circulate among your friends, and at meetings. When filled return to Petition Editor, Boston Evening American, Boston, Mass.)

NAME	STREET NO.	CITY	STATE

HURLEY CITES NEED OF RELIEF BOND ISSUE

Pursuant to the plan of presenting prominent citizens and officials of city and state, the Boston Evening American today introduced State Treasurer Charles F. Hurley last night during the [illegible] o'clock news period heard through Station WAAB.

In his discourse Mr. Hurley placed emphasis upon the dire need for some federal disposition of the matter of floating the widely talked of $5,000,000,000 Bond Issue for unemployment relief as proposed some time ago and since strenuously advocated by William Randolph Hearst and House Speaker John N. Garner.

NO TIME FOR QUIBBLING

His vigorous remarks heard by radio listeners throughout New England were in part:

"When children are starving is no time to quibble. Immediate action is imperative. Last year there were 6,000,000 men in the streets, this year 8,000,000 bread winners are without employment. The President says that 'the responsibility for relief belongs to private organizations, local communities and to states.'

"But even to these sources of aid there must be an end. Municipal and private funds are being drained to the limit. The City of Boston alone is paying to the unemployed at the rate of $12,000,000 a year. Nor is charity the solution. These men don't want charity, they want the right to keep their families happy and healthy through their own labors.

"Charity breeds idleness and poverty encourages crime. Not only that, but the people are losing confidence in the government. When a man who is anxious to work is forced to see his loved ones in actual want, it is difficult to satisfy him with promises.

ONLY ONE SOLUTION

"There is one solution and that is a loan by the federal government large enough to be effective in so vast and far-reaching a crisis. The money could be raised by means of a long term bond issue to be used for careful and discriminating expenditure on public works, which, in themselves, will be of lasting value to the government.

"The federal government must act immediately to put these men to work that they may once more know themselves to be important cogs in the machinery of progress. Eight million discontented citizens are not good for the national health," the secretary declared.

French President Visits U. S. Embassy

Paris, May 27 (AP)—President Albert Lebrun, heavily guarded by detectives in view of Communist threats growing out of the Scottsboro, Ala., case, paid his first visit of courtesy to the American ambassador, Walter E. Edge, today.

The President remained 10 minutes and during his stay sidewalks in the vicinity were cleared of pedestrians.

Yeggs Refuse to Tap Community Chest

Niagara Falls, N. Y., May 27 (AP)—Even safe blowers can have compassion on the needy.

A gang pried open the strong box in a laundry office but when they found the only money it contained was the contributions of the employes to the Community Chest they left it there.

Fishermen Feed City's Seals to Keep Them Out of the Harbor

San Francisco, May 27 (AP)—Nine tame seals in the city aquarium have been put on the payroll of the commercial fishing industry to keep them out of the Pacific ocean. When only $10 apiece was bid for the $1000 seals, the city thought to turn them loose in the ocean. The fishermen came running.

"Don't do that," they cried in alarm. "Those seals would hang around the bay and fish us out of business. Keep 'em where they are and we'll feed 'em free."

Marion Davies Has Picked Billie Dove to Co-Star in "Good Time Girl"

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Los Angeles, May 27—"Grand Hotel" started a new vogue. Hereafter you may look to see more than one important name in any picture of consequence. Marion Davies has asked Billie Dove to play the other chorine in "Good Time Girl" (temporary title) and Billie has accepted. Billie said yes because she feels it's better to be a part of a successful Davies-Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production than to go it alone in some less promising production.

Louella O. Parsons

"Good Time Girl" is the story of two girls who begin life together in a department store basement and graduate to the chorus. Edmund Goulding, the director, is assembling his cast and getting ready to begin work this week. James Gleason has signed to play Marion's father. Some cast!

Chatter in Hollywood

If Johnny Weissmuller knew how happy he made his wife with his gift of a new fur jacket he would see to it that she got more presents in the future. Bobbe was at the Frolics and she told me she was so excited over the gift because it was the first he had ever made her outside of Christmas presents. Several movie producers have gone to the Pasadena Community Playhouse to see Barbara Kent in "The Perfect Alibi." There should be a few movie contracts after this show. The report that Greta Garbo sailed suddenly for Sweden on the 24th is more false than Mark Twain's death. Greta is still in town and will be for two weeks more. I hear from a confidential source she had reservations originally on a Swedish boat but she could not finish her business in time to leave. Congratulations and good wishes have poured in on Jack Gilbert and Virginia Bruce. The announcement of their engagement reported exclusively by Universal Service brought about an avalanche of telegrams and telephone calls. Florence Rice Smith, daughter of Grantland Rice, sports writer, is critically ill in the Good Samaritan Hospital.

Borrowing Stars

The most significant news of the week is the exchange of Clark Gable and Fredric March by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Paramount. Louis B. Mayer and Irving Thalberg, who will go to the present studio difficulties as far as humanly possible, agreed to let Paramount have Gable (their best male bet) in exchange for March. What studio would refuse to borrow Gable? He will be co-starred with Miriam Hopkins in her next picture, "No Bed of Her Own." Frederick March will be the chief male attraction in Norma Shearer's next picture, "Smilin' Thru."

Miriam Hopkins

A Line or Two

Slim Summerville was the only character in "All Quiet on the Western Front" that didn't die. Through all the shot and shell and misery, Slim remained undisturbed and unperturbed. He is also the only actor signed so far to play in "The Road Back," a sequel to Erich Maria Remarque's "All Quiet." James Whale is the director.

THE VOICE OF BROADWAY

By LOUIS SOBOL

Broadway Merry-Go-Round!

The music's squeaky, I admit, but don't mind that. Just get aboard and grab yourself a seat on this merry-go-round and listen to the music of the city. It's harsh at times, soft and sweet at other [illegible] We were off and [illegible] there was [illegible] High O'C [illegible] one of [illegible] good [illegible] the [illegible] and he draws a sweet salary, but many of us can remember the years back when he [illegible] a penny there for coffee and [illegible] now that he's somewhere near the [illegible] he hasn't forgotten what [illegible] [illegible] Those [illegible] [illegible] Even now [illegible] [illegible] an [illegible]

Well there they are, brother and sister, both on Broadway. I mean Eva Puck playing in "Show Boat," and Harry Puck, at the Palace. The first time in years they've both been featured on the Big Street at the same time—although years ago, they tell me—it was long before my time—both did a brother and sister act in the old local variety houses. Of course, another brother and sister act is that of Fanny and Lew Brice, and Ethel Barrymore has been known to appear with either John or Lionel Barrymore or both and there's no reason why a brother and sister shouldn't put on an act together, and because there's no reason why they shouldn't many of them do, and I swear I don't know even why I'm making such a fuss about it now, except that this merry-go-round brings a rush of the blood to the head and I'm likely to go off in this silly fashion at any time, with or without permission of the copyright owner. Yep, that's Lupe Velez—a consistent rider on this carousel, and now she doesn't mind sitting next to me even, although only the other week she was getting bargain prices on nice sharply pointed, lady-like stilettos for use on columnists exclusively. But look, here she is at the El Garron sitting with Bert Taylor and Peggy Fears and A. C. Blumenthal and Hesinks! I'm fainting—she beckons to me cordially and she kisses me (I've told you before what a cad I am about these little intimacies), and now what will I do if a smash-bang yarn about her comes my way. Use it, of course—and have her start consulting the stiletto catalogs all over again. O, hum—and you take the slack aday.

So the marriage of Preston Sturges and Eleanor Hutton goes [illegible] What a surprise. Surprise my skinny neck. Almost a year ago didn't I tell you they'd [illegible] come to the end of their marital tether, but [illegible] just like the rest of the gang [illegible] the way of all columnists [illegible] bragging about scoops which nobody gives a hang about. People are interested in the news of the day, but they don't go into a fever because one [illegible] first. [illegible] back [illegible] the Hutton lass [illegible] Here a young fellow who had suddenly shot into the limelight with his smash hit "Strictly Dishonorable" and there a gal rating plenty of potential money, and she defies the family and elopes with him and swears that nothing will tear them apart, love was a tie that family or money or lack of money couldn't snap. Well, something snapped it and it's too bad, because Preston's a nice fellow and I hear Eleanor's a grand girl too in spite of her money.

Well, there's that fella, Roscoe Arbuckle, and I guess he's a little peeved at me for not being altogether kind to him, but I can't help being what I am. Speaking my mind right out—but, on the other hand, I never let personal feelings interfere with a story, and I've just heard one about Arbuckle that appeals to me. It seems years ago, when he was starring in the old Mack Sennett's comedies, Friday was considered "workless extra day." On that day all the regulars who had not worked during the week were called for a scene, and if there were no scenes to be made the extras were taken out on a public street and made to run, while an unloaded camera ground away. The fellow who paid those extras was Arbuckle himself—although the checks presumably came from the studio. And furthermore, Fatty had the checks made out for work so the pride of the extras wouldn't be hurt. Now that's quite a group—going places together these nights: Edmund Lowe and Lilyan Tashman, Victor McLaglen and Fifi D'Orsay—and what a fascinating quartet they make.

[illegible] tomorrow [illegible] I kind of miss [illegible] Broadway [illegible] stream [illegible] [illegible]

NOW SCIENCE TELLS WHY BRAN IS SO GOOD FOR HEALTH

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Has "Bulk" and Vitamin B; Also Healthful Iron

By using Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, millions of people have overcome common constipation, and the headaches, loss of appetite and energy that so frequently result.

New laboratory tests show ALL-BRAN supplies two things needed to overcome temporary and recurring constipation: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines. Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently it clears the intestines of wastes.

Further experiments prove ALL-BRAN provides twice as much blood-building iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.

Eat this delicious cereal and avoid pills and drugs. They cause artificial action, and often lead to harmful habits.

Try two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN daily — sufficient to overcome most types of constipation. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

ALL-BRAN has a delicious, nut-sweet flavor. Enjoy as a cereal with milk or cream, or use in making fluffy bran muffins, breads, omelets, etc. Recipes on the red-and-green package. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

STOCK IN BUS LOAN TRACED TO WALKER

New York, May 27—Park Commissioner Walter R. Herrick testified today before the [illegible] committee that he bought for Mayor Walker [illegible] money [illegible] shares of [illegible] in Herrick's name and part of which was pawned [illegible] for a loan to the [illegible].

Walker denied on the stand [illegible] that he ever owned the stock directly or indirectly.

CROWD CHEERS SEABURY

[illegible] before Herrick took the stand Seabury in reply to a [illegible] by Democratic members of the committee [illegible] had been [illegible] that [illegible] Sherwood's flight in the face of accusation is some evidence of guilt."

Although the courtroom was [illegible] crowded than it was yesterday and Wednesday when Walker was on the stand [illegible] were taken. Today's crowd apparently was more friendly to Seabury. He was cheered several times during his summation, and the Democrats who kept objecting were hissed.

Herrick [illegible] Olphant [illegible] it would be a good thing to put [illegible] Olphant [illegible] he wanted [illegible].

"WALKER PAID $39,000"

He suggested I might be able to get an allotment through the mayor," Herrick said.

Herrick testified he took the matter up with Walker and Walker [illegible] right to buy stock in the company "if I did [illegible]."

[illegible] Walker [illegible] at the same time he wanted to [illegible].

Herrick said Walker's share was paid for with $39,000 sent to him from the City Hall by either the mayor or his secretary, Edward Stanton.

He testified that 350 shares of the stock were [illegible] in his, Herrick's name and that an endorsement on the certificate showed that 25 shares were to go to Olliphant and the rest were to be broken up into five units, two of 100 shares each, two of 50 shares each and one of [illegible] shares.

IT WAS FOR WALKER

Herrick testified that [illegible] in his name [illegible] 2 [illegible].

Herrick testified that [illegible] the $33,000 came to him from the mayor directly or from the mayor's secretary, there was no doubt in his mind the purchase was made for Mayor Walker.

He said he had met Stanton recently and had talked about the matter with him and that Stanton told him he (Stanton) probably had handled the matter.

"There is no question however," Herrick added, "that if Stanton handled it he handled it for the mayor."

He [illegible] the [illegible] of them [illegible] Stanton.

After Herrick had [illegible] 100 share certificates [illegible] had given Stanton, Seabury said they bore endorsements to [illegible] Smith, [illegible] man who, according to previous evidence, bought a $10,000 letter of credit which the mayor and his party used during a European trip in 1927.

FASHIONS IN THOUGHT FOR STUDENTS NO CAUSE FOR WORRY

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

PROF. ROGERS

I WISH THAT I MIGHT have heard Dean Roscoe Pound's address before the Tufts chapter of the Phi Beta Kappa. From the fragments printed in the newspapers I gathered that it was of extraordinary interest and that it raised questions of profound importance. As far as I can make out, Dean Pound seems to think that modern psychology and philosophy, in which the intelligent modern student is steeped, result in lack of confidence, a disposition to distrust all generalizations and principles, and a paralysis of the will.

There is no doubt as to the validity of Dean Pound's assertion that the modern student is thoroughly accustomed to the idea that all thought is merely "rationalization." Many students, of course can go through college without having the slightest inkling of what is going on in the world of thought, but Dean Pound was speaking of the reasonably intelligent ones, who earnestly desire to know a little of what modern psychology teaches and modern philosophy opines.

* * *

Believe as We Want to Believe

Well, one belief they must inescapably learn is that we believe what we want to believe and then build up a false facade of reason to hide our naked wishes, not so much to fool others as to fool ourselves. "Ideals" are rationalizations of this sort. Another idea which they are pretty sure to run across is that this is a pluralistic world, a world of an infinite number of principles and laws, which most likely cannot be reduced into intelligible patterns by the human reason.

The human mind is so constructed that it cannot deal with any but demonstrable physical truths, and even those it has to simplify in order to use them at all. Since there is no way by which we can hit upon the truth and know that it is the truth, we must cling to the truth that appeals to us, that works for us, and call it our truth, always remembering that we must equally allow the other fellow to act in accordance with his truth. William James called this idea "pragmatism," the prag-tical philosophy.

Dean Pound finds that students who have run across these ideas in their reading, as they surely will, come to distrust reason and are impatient at the attempts of their teachers to systematize and order and generalize the chaotic and pluralistic universe, both physical and moral, into basic principles of method and conduct such as every generation before ours has taken for granted. The result is a pessimistic denial of the validity of the principles of progress, democracy, government, the law, education, religion and morals. It is "the cult of the irrational."

Dean Pound is right in his facts. These ideas are so thoroughly established in modern thought that they must be taught. I teach them myself, in an attempt to orient the students in the world of present day ideas in which they must willy-nilly live. One can't speak of modern philosophy or modern literature without taking these ideas as basic.

* * *

Life's Problems Will Provide Balance

As to the effect on the student I am not so sure as Dean Pound that they paralyze thought and action. There are occasional students, of course, who should not be exposed to ideas of any sort. But in most instances I doubt if they do any lasting harm.

While they are students, of course, with no problems to handle and no action before them, they will talk endlessly of these ideas as ideas and take on protective coloration from the literature they read. It is an age of pessimistic analysis and they get their share of it. But, at least, I see few signs in them of that unbearable cocksure attitude which has always been the curse of the human race, the belief that they know they are right and the willingness to prescribe pains and penalties for the other fellows who they know are wrong!

The present generation may be uncertain of its principles and enfeebled in its will, temporarily at least, but at least there will be among them comparatively few persecutors, inquisitors, wowsers, and Pharisees. This may be a sign of back-sliding—indeed, I am inclined to think it is—but it is a fact and we can take what comfort out of it we may.

I said, "temporarily." There, I think, is where Dean Pound underestimates the healing power of time. These men will go out into the world where they will soon discover that the dispassionate attitude won't work. Each man will become, whether he wills it or no, a function of a group society moved largely by emotion and self-interest. If he fights against that he may become an outsider, a professional liberal, a Clarence Darrow or the like. But in 90 cases out of 100 he will not fight against it. He will succumb. By the time he is 30 he will consider his earlier views and beliefs interesting but rather amusing and unimportant. By 40 he will have forgotten all about them. By 50 he may be seriously disturbed by whatever notions his son has picked up in college.

Youth Outgrows Fashions in Thought

In short he will do his actual living, as most of us do, in terms of the old basic antediluvian formulas, the proverbs of Solmon with their salty and contemptuous wisdom, the old, old maxims of human experience. What Kipling calls 'the maxims of the market place' flourish like a green bay tree for a generation or a century and give way to others, but the laws written on the adamant tablets survive them all.

Every generation of the youngsters gets his dose of the latest fashion in thought and outgrows it. Only the teachers and the professional writing folk, the thought-mongers of civilization, never really grow up, and so continue to take these symbols for actuality, until—to their alarm and horror—they find themselves supplanted by new thought-mongers with new prescriptions. All that remains of value is a growing tolerance to new ideas.

I suspect, then, that Dean Pound is unnecessarily alarmed. But I cannot help wondering where a teacher in a law school gathered this evidence, anyway. The liberal arts colleges are full of it. There is plenty even in the schools of science and engineering. But I should hazard a guess that of all our young American intellectuals the average school student is the most safely insulated from modern ideas of any description. His subject matter and his temperament would seem to guarantee that. That, I suppose, is one thing that is the matter with the law.

More than a score of Newton citizens appeared at a public hearing before the claims and rules committee of the Board of Aldermen and prevailed upon the committee to reject the petition of Emilo DiLuzio for rezoning of his land at Warren st. and Glen ave. from private residence to business.

KEARNEY BARES WIFE'S ARREST

Details of a party in a Montreal tavern which was climaxed with the arrest of his wife were told in probate court today by former Representative John J. Kearney, business agent of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes' Union, contesting Mrs. Kearney's separate support action.

Her language at the party became so objectionable, Kearney testified, that they weer ordered to leave and she was arrested when she refused.

On another occasion, Kearney said he stepped into his car in front of a Boston hotel and started to drive to the South End. After riding several blocks he was suddenly struck from behind and turned to find his wife in the rear seat.

She beat him many times previous to their separation in 1925, Kearney said, and he left her when she assaulted him in his office during a conference with labor leaders.

Mrs. Kearney testified she received a total of $379 from her husband since their separation. He is a former president of the Boston Central Labor Union.

SAVES WIFE AND SON AT FIRE

After lowering his wife from the bedroom window John W. Corkum tossed their five-year-old son into her arms today when fire broke out in their home on Spring st., Watertown.

The family was awakened by smoke and found the path to the doors blocked by smoke and flame.

Mrs. Corkum was suspended by the arms for the 15-foot drop to the ground and Corkum stumbled through the smoke to the room of his boy. He bundled Elroy, five, in a blanket, tossed him to Mrs. Corkum and then leaped to safety himself.

When Chief O'Hearn arrived he ordered a second alarm that summoned help from Belmont and Newton. Damage was estimated at $3000.

CARDINAL IN PLEA FOR WEEK OF PRAYER

Prelate Calls on All to Join in Plea for Relief From Economic Situation

The Feast of the Sacred Heart and the seven days following the feast will be observed this year by all Catholics as an occasion of special prayer and reparation in accordance with the wishes of Pope Pius XI.

Special notices have been sent priests of the archdiocese informing them of the manner in which these days are to be observed.

The cardinal issued the following plea to all Catholics urging them to spend the days from June 3, the Feast Day of the Sacred Heart, to June 10 in seeking prayer and reparation, begging God for relief from the present economic situation and other situations that are causing so much trouble among men of all nations.

"It is the earnest desire of His Eminence, the Cardinal, that men and women of good will everywhere in our beloved country, even though not members of the Catholic Church, will join in this vast spiritual movement, so that the Eternal God of heaven and earth will be disposed by this great universal act of confidence and love to receive with favor their supplications for relief.

BROADSIDE AT G. O. P. CHIEFS OPENS DRIVE

Flays Failure to Relieve Unemployment, Tax Burden and Exorbitant Auto Rate

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Republican circles were agog today over the announcement of Frank A. Goodwin, chairman of the Boston Finance Commission, and former registrar of motor vehicles, that he is a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor.

Goodwin's announcement came as a complete surprise not only to some of his closest friends but to Lieut.-Gov. William S. Youngman as well. The lieutenant-governor who has had the field to himself up to now, declined to comment.

APPEAL TO INDEPENDENTS

Goodwin will be supported by the Commonwealth Service Association, an organization of public employes, of which he has been president; by the automobile industry and many motor car owners who have endorsed his fight against inequalities in the compulsory automobile insurance law, and by many other organizations and individuals impatient over the failure of the government to tax the rich field of intangibles.

His campaign in the main will be an appeal to the great mass of independent voters who have never aligned themselves with either party.

In a circular to this class of citizens Goodwin emphasized that the failure of the independent voters to take part in the primaries has made it possible for the machine leaders of both parties to hand-pick their candidates.

CLAIMS GREATER STRENGTH

Goodwin cast aside any "right" of succession by a lieutenant-governor to the office of governor. He said further that on the basis of the 1928 vote, he as candidate for governor received 171,167 votes while Youngman running as lieutenant-governor, got but 113,805. In other words, he seeks to show that he is the stronger candidate of the two.

In an attack on the G. O. P. party chieftains, Goodwin contended that there can be no real leaders with any appeal to the rank and file of the party so long as "it takes orders from the financial district of Boston."

"Its leaders and would-be leaders are more interested in pre-primary conventions and the rum question than in such vital questions as the relief of the unemployed, relief to the home owner from the crushing taxes, protection of people's money in banks or relief to motor vehicle owners from exorbitant insurance rates," he declared.

He contended that this burden has come from waste, extravagance and unnecessary bureaus, service and employes in municipal and state government, and by the ability of owners of intangible wealth to dodge the payment of their just share of the increased cost of government.

SCORES TAX DODGERS

"Of course I realize that I may be called a demogogue for suggesting that our best people are dodging taxes, but fortunately their tax dodging has been made a matter of record at the State House, after an intensive study of five years, in a report by a special commission of which Senator Erland F. Fish of Brookline was chairman."

He declared that this report shows that the owners of five-sixths of the wealth of the state is paying only one-tenth of the taxes which is bleeding real estate white.

A bill to correct this situation, he said, was killed by a combination of bankers, brokers, insurance gas and electric interests who organized themselves into an organization known as the Massachusetts Tax Association.

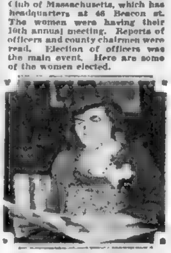
At G. O. P. Meeting

With the Candid Camera

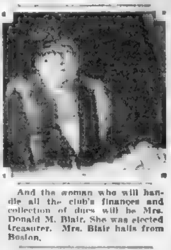
By CANDID CAMERA

My travels yesterday brought me to the Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts, which has headquarters at 46 Beacon st. The women were having their 10th annual meeting. Reports of officers and county chairmen were read. Election of officers was the main event. Here are some of the women elected.

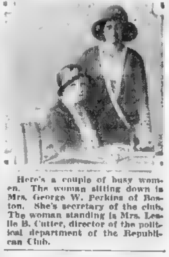


First, of course, we'll show you the president. She is Miss Katherine V. Parker. She was reelected. Miss Parker hails from Clinton. She's going to be a busy woman during 1932—big political year.

Mrs. George W. Knolton, North Upton, was elected second vice-president. Mrs. Knolton was busy when I snapped her. There'll be plenty of work for Mrs. Knolton with the coming elections and nominations.



And the woman who will handle all the club's finances and collection of dues will be Mrs. Donald M. Blair. She was elected treasurer. Mrs. Blair hails from Boston.



Here's a couple of busy women. The woman sitting down is Mrs. George W. Perkins of Boston. She's secretary of the club. The woman standing is Mrs. Leslie B. Cutler, director of the political department of the Republican Club.

ARRESTS DROP IN NEWTON

An unprecedented shrinkage in the volume of police business occurred in Newton last year, when the number of arrests was about 1000 less than that of the preceding year, according to the annual report of Chief of Police Michael T. Hughes, issued today.

The total number of arrests in 1931 was 2244 compared with 3141 in 1930. The number of arrests for drunkenness, however, increased from 533 in 1930 to 565 last year, and the arrests for violation of the liquor laws jumped from 25 in 1930 to 46 last year. On the other hand, the number of arrests for operating under the influence of liquor dropped from 74 to 63.

GIRL STUDENTS STAGE CIRCUS

Dorchester High School for Girls has gone "circus."

A two-ring performance, scores of acts, side shows, "savages" and "animals" have sprung from the ranks of the athletic association here.

The girls staged a performance yesterday and another will take place today before Miss Alice M. Twigg, headmaster; the school faculty, and an audience of parents and friends.

Pauline Crosby was the bearded lady; Helen Anderson and Lucille O'Brien suddenly turned into a camel; Julia and Nora Crehan, twin sisters, went "Siamese" for the occasion. Lillian Axon turned in a performance as the fat lady, Mary Sullivan the human skeleton and Betty Heiser the snake charmer.

There were scores of others to work out the program under the direction of Miss Helen Dolan, Miss Miriam Driscoll, Miss Mary Gibbons and Miss Alice McClure of the faculty. The student committee consisted of Lois Hickey, Alice O'Toole, Ruth Shaw and Julia Crehan.

The success of the performances promises to make the circus an annual affair of the athletic association.

Newton School Head Guest at Reception

A public reception was tendered at Newton high school to Supt. of Schools Ulysses G. Wheeler who retires at the close of the present term, ending 18 years of service.

Payson Smith, commissioner of the State Department of Education, Mayor Sinclair Weeks and ex-Mayor Edwin O. Childs were the speakers at the occasion last night.

Autoist Fined $50

Claude R. Corbin of Morrison ave., Somerville, was fined $50 in Waltham District Court for operating an auto in Watertown so that the lives and safety of the public might be endangered. He appealed.

CARON TO JOIN HARVARD STAFF

Pierre Caron, chief of the section of modern history in the French National Archives, will come to Harvard next fall for the first half of the year, as exchange professor from France, according to an announcement.

George La Piana, professor of church history at Harvard since 1926, has been chosen as the first Johns Hopkins Morison professor of theology at the Harvard Theological school.

Dr. Frederick Herman Verhoeff, since 1926 chief of research at the Massachusetts Charitable Eye and Ear Infirmary, will become on June 1 director of the Howe laboratory of opthalmology.

Other appointments announced were those of David V. Widder as associate professor of mathematics; John Tileston Edsall, assistant professor of biological chemistry, and Arthur Kilgore McComb, assistant professor of fine arts.

William I. Nichols will return to Harvard in September as secretary to the university for information, succeeding Robert K. Lamb, resigned.

Joao Frederico Normano will serve next year as lecturer on economics; Newton H. Black will become assistant professor of physics, and Theodore James Blanchard Stier, associate director of the laboratory of general physiology.

Driver Held After Woman Is Injured

Joseph A. Murray, 24, of Milton st., Dorchester, was arrested by police of Athens st. station, yesterday for operating an auto without a license after he knocked down Mrs. Margaret Bishop, 56, of East Eighth st., South Boston at West Eighth and E sts. She was taken to Carney Hospital.

Contracts Awarded for Fire Stations

The contracts to build the two new Medford fire stations have been awarded to ex-Alderman A. C. Peters and the D'Amore Construction Co., it is announced by Mayor Burke. The latter company will erect the Glenwood station and Peters will have charge of the erection of the Fulton Heights station.

KELLEY NAMED CHIEF MARSHAL

Mayor Curley has approved the appointment of Commander Timothy J. Kelley of the Colonel Bogan Camp, United Spanish War Veterans, to serve as chief marshal of the military and civic Bunker Hill Day parade at Charlestown June 17.

Not only did the chief marshal serve at Havana Harbor with the United States navy in the Spanish war, but he also saw action in the Philippines and in China. With his wife and three children he now lives at 10 Cedar st., Charlestown.

The Mayor also announced the appointment of John Morey of the Bogan Camp to serve as chief of staff of the parade.

Charles Castor was named chairman of the Bunker Hill Day celebration committee, and Representative William P. Prendergast was appointed to serve as master of ceremonies at the "night before" banquet.

CROSSWORLD TO BE AT MEETING

Many persons from "foreign parts" will be in Boston during the week of June 6 to attend the annual meeting of the Mother Church of Christian Science.

They reserved their quarters at the Hotel Minerva six months ago, and some of them have been a month on their way to America. From the Antipodes come Mr. and Mrs. Prentice of Australia, while from Monrovia, West Africa, is Mrs. P. J. Fitzsimmons, who will arrive June 4.

C. Duncanson of Glasgow, Scotland, is another who has traveled far, while there are groups from California, Texas and other far Western states. Among the Californians is Mrs. Max Hirsch of Long Beach and A. L. Grainger of Oakland.

Trade Board Elects

Patrick J. Connelly was re-elected president of the Dorchester Board of Trade at its annual election last night at the Dorchester Plaza.

Dr. Cousens Quits as Fund Trustee

The resignation of Dr. John A. Cousens, president of Tufts College, as a trustee of the Horace Cousens Industrial Fund, and the appointment of Arthur C. Dunmore in his place was announced today by Mayor Sinclair Weeks of Newton.

Dr. Cousens is a relative of the late Horace Cousens, donor of the fund. The business of the board has been largely making loans to Newton citizens to aid them in purchasing homes.

Dogs Cost Waban Woman $10 Fine

Mrs. Dorothy G. Farrar, 27, of Neshobe rd., Waban, was fined $10 in the Newton District Court for violating the ordinance that prohibits keeping a "barking, biting or howling dog."

She refused to allow the case to be placed on file with a finding of guilty. She appealed and furnished $100 bail. Frank H. Sullivan of Neshobe rd. charged that her two Irish setters barked continuously, damaged his property and attacked him.

THEY'RE SEEKING FAME IN RKO OPPORTUNITY CONTEST

BOSTON ENTRANT

Julia Cohen, pretty Boston miss, is confident she will be in RKO "Opportunity Revue" next month.

THE MICHANDS HOPE TO WIN

Luciene Michand and Felix Billernue, dancing team, believe Bobby Connelly, who will direct rehearsals at the RKO revue will help make them famous.

SINGER AND DANCER

Jane Francis, South Boston singer and dancer, is one of the recent entrants in the revue contest.

THE GARDEN TOUR THROUGH THE LOVELY BOWERS of Weymouth was most enjoyable . . . Mrs. Frederick Bauer's unique rock garden path was a picture to linger long in our memory

Mrs. J. Herbert Libby

If there is any flower more gorgeous than the Japanese azalea, we do not know it and the 25-year-old bushes which are on the William J. Holbrook estate at South Weymouth were well worth the trip down to the South Shore

Equally delightful was the quaint one-year-old rockery adapted by Mrs Albert L. Jewell of Weymouth to a rugged hillside, gay with violet and pink ground phlox and the thousand and one colorful blooms peculiar to ground gardens

Always romantic . . . European in atmosphere, a sunken garden allures us and the lovely one on the estate of Mrs J. Herbert Libby on Hillcrest rd was not the least bit disappointing . and

Weekend Party

AFTER THE LUNCHEON, Miss Nancy will wend her way to Connecticut over the holiday week-end for a jolly house-party at the home of the Knapps at Groton Long Point, Connecticut. The Morison summer place is at Peterboro, N. H., and almost any Friday a crowd of young people may be seen piling into sport models, whisking over the roads to enjoy the delights of a country week end. There are five pretty Morison girls and, in spite of all that has been said about the "modern" girl, no smoking and no cocktails has not dimmed the popularity of these charming maidens

Books—and a Number of Things—

By Charles Hanson Towne

LETTER TO AN OLD FRIEND

Dear Emily. Do you remember when I brought to you the first volume of "Men and Memories," by Sir William Rothenstein, and how we opened it together and suddenly found ourselves reading whole chapters aloud to each other? We said then that the test of any author—almost the supreme test—was whether he could be read aloud. Every least fault comes out then. But Rothenstein wrote as well as he painted; and now the second volume of his rich memoirs is at hand and I am asking his publishers Coward McCann to send you one of the first copies

It covers the period between 1900-1922 with more fascinating glimpses of the great men and women whom he met and knew so well Here is one like Stevenson with a genius for friendship. Conrad's and Masefield's letters alone would prove that; but there are dozens of others who poured out their hearts to him on paper

There is even one period of four months spent in America, but he well knew that he was but catching a fleeting view of us. He visited only New York Boston and Chicago, and being a guest of friends, he came in contact with people of his own world and saw nothing of contrasting American life If he ever returns to our shores he says it will be a free agent just as Hugh Walpole once told me he desired to come—not as a lecturer, but as an observing man of letters

* * *

I know your admiration of Max Beerbohm as both writer and caricaturist. Turn, then, first of all to page 313 of this volume and read the satirical ballad which the incomparable Max wrote of the Rothenstein dog, Rover. How many casual verses like this he must have turned out lightly during the course of his gentle life and how good it is that friends like Rothenstein have kept them, to give to us now. This is genius spilling its beauty and cleverness for us, with no more thought of reward than the moon expects when she lavishes her light along some weary road

It is said here of Max: "While he seems to take life lightly, to be charming and patient with every one he meets, his will when he wishes to exert it, is as strong as Lord Snowden's. His no is no though he would rather approve than disapprove. Of later years, especially, he shrinks from offending people; the once pitiless satirist has become the most human and understanding of men. I know so many with wandering eyes who feel their time wasted with any but important persons. Max who charms every one, finds most people charming And how quickly he discovers the essence of each personality. What pleases me, too, is his loyalty to his own age. The young come to pay him homage, and he readily recognizes new talent, but his comments on pretentious modernity are withering

That is an excellent appraisement, isn't it?

Rodin had recommended to Rothenstein for the summer's painting during 1906 to go to Thiers, for he had been greatly struck by this little hill town But searching round his old Burgundian haunts our author found St Seine instead not far from Dijon a village with a beautiful abbey [illegible] Then he says something which will delight you "Where one finds one good subject for a painting one is sure to discover others

And he tells a delicious story of the naivete of the chatelaine of the deserted chateau where they were stopping One night he met her in the garden under a full moon "Have you the moon, too, in England?" she asked At another time when he was painting and she passed with her husband Rothenstein remarked on the beauty of the clouds. At this she looked up and said, "en effet, I have never noticed the clouds before" The book is alive with equally happy observations.

He had long admired the books of W. H Hudson and he made a wonderful portrait of him, which even Hudson's wife liked And he says of the man' "His peculiar, mysterious charm was indescribable; something about him tore at one's heart, so lovable he was. Yet he never invited affection; he was a lonely man with something of the animal about him, walking away and returning with the nonchalance of an animal and then disappearing again." A novelist might have been proud to write of that description

* * *

Rothenstein sent Masefield then unknown to fame, a fine letter which Count Kessler had written praising his first sea poems How astute a self critic Masefield was is shown by this quotation from his reply'

"It was a very deep pleasure to me to receive such praise, but Count Kessler judges my work too kindly. I have my own little boat stuck full of gimcracks and little gay flags, but I am not fit to be mentioned in the one breath with Conrad I am not in the same sea with him. He has a disciplined imagination, and I have a disordered fantasy. However, I am going through a mill of prose drama the strictest discipline a writer can have, so that my work in future may keep more closely to life"

I have given you but a smattering of what the book contains It is a veritable storehouse of anecdote and comment on art and literature and life It is one of the rare modern books we keep close at hand and open and reopen at brief intervals

BOOKS AND CHARACTERS

By Lincoln Kirstein

How often it strikes one [illegible] week after we [illegible] as they are [illegible] of Hollywood—the general repetition the worn out formulas the sheer waste in boredom The film [illegible] of amusement has [illegible] to [illegible] real recreation [illegible] surprise of [illegible] or place attracted [illegible] occupy at [illegible] the time of [illegible]

There can't be [illegible] the fraction [illegible] even a [illegible] the film industry [illegible] of production [illegible] for example [illegible] automobiles or radio sets [illegible] this is hardly a fair comparison It can be argued that when one is dealing with the problem of the creation of an automobile certain definite scientific considerations are given, certain mechanical limits are imposed But there is also the large question of individual taste that must be allowed for and reckoned with

How close Henry Ford came to disaster when he ruled that his model could be any color [illegible] as it was black. At the present although the various different makes of motor cars have their [illegible] mechanized [illegible] individualized appeal to the average buyer is in the gadgets on the dashboard and the external appearance of the body Both the automobile industry and the film industry to a great extent presuppose their techniques. Improvements may, of course, be constantly added—but the mechanism of recording, lighting, synchronization and release are so completely cared for as to be taken for granted

LOVE RULES ALL

The films have also the [illegible] question of personal preference, of individual taste, of what the public wants One would imagine if [illegible] technical apparatus was so well arranged that the talkies would be free to improve in their substance, in their subject matter The entire subject matter of about half the films that are produced is fixed

Love conquers all Love stories, or stories with sex interest have a higher box-office drawing power than any other category, and can be counted upon, if anything can be definitely counted upon, to pay. Love stories with whatever decorations added to titillate the eyesight are the identical love story. The boy gets the girl, or maybe the girl gets the boy There are two or three obvious obstacles in the way, but no one is really at a moment's doubt as to the outcome Love conquers all Thus at least a half of the films are innocently occupied. But the other half is a big half and a half or even a quarter of that other half is still a tremendously large segment of possible value And there are by no means enough ideas, enough new situations, new stories to anywhere redeem from general failure that other huge half

THE GRAND HOTEL

Every so often something new will flash before us. But the new idea will hardly ever be created with the full possibilities of the movie camera in mind. By way of a best selling book, or a successful play the films are occasionally replenished, but ultimately speaking what does it mean?

For example, take Grand Hotel The book was, in conjunction with the elaborate and widely shown stage production, a best seller. It employed the background of a continental semi-Ritz hotel as a foil for the love affairs of a number of people from various stations of life The main interest lay in the fact that there were contrasted rich and poor people in the [illegible] and the fading [illegible] with the fading [illegible] of a great [illegible]

[illegible] not startlingly original there were a few ideas here enough ideas for an entertaining [illegible] But the movies turned the Grand Hotel into a modernistic [illegible] of superstitive and fitted [illegible] with a galaxy of Hollywood [illegible] Given the [illegible] Barrymores [illegible] the Garbo [illegible] Grand Hotel [illegible] somewhere [illegible] passed the [illegible] handsome [illegible] art that was [illegible] of the original any [illegible] the [illegible] ballerina of [illegible] American audiences care [illegible] for a consecutive [illegible] They want personalities and the inflation of personality value has pretty well exhausted the characters of the film in this country [illegible] anything but a power for [illegible] We go into the dark of a theater to be rocked gently [illegible] quickly to sleep

THE WET PARADE

[illegible] THE WET PARADE [illegible] speaking is a film [illegible] and the [illegible] predominant Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer were [illegible] with the polemics of Upton Sinclair's elephantine book that the picture is nearly two hours long. Many literary masterpieces have suffered decapitation, while a book of the most [illegible] is given all the benefit of [illegible] attention to [illegible] data In point of fact [illegible] length robs the film of any [illegible]

Passing over the [illegible] fact as to whether or not prohibition is the most important question now facing the country to deserve all the [illegible] pre-eminence of Hollywood's attention, over and above the facts of unemployment and the crisis of our credit, let us examine what The Wet Parade does when one has seen it In its attempt to be fair it is ambiguous, almost as if it were carefully planned to hurt nobody's feelings, wet or dry

Not that there aren't a lot of things that the American film industry could look at from the point of view of ideas, and make money on, as well. THE CONGRESS DANCES, a recent foreign film, happened to be a flop in New York, after enormous success in Vienna, Berlin, London and Paris.

TOO SLOW FOR US

Its pace was too slow to be sure for us, accustomed as we are to the staccato rhythms of our own milieu—but there were a number of things that were instructive about it It combined a very ingenious [illegible] story with a lot of excellent Viennese waltz tunes on a lively background of history

We have not yet had the great American novel, though surely the Civil War is the great American subject Picture a film based on any aspect of that struggle, not merely another Birth of a Nation with a repetition of night riders and cowering ingenues, but a real picture with an insight into the actual carnage of the wilderness hell, the cavalry raids of Jeb Stuart with his plumed hat and red rose, and his black minstrel following him on a mule with a banjo. Such a Civil War picture would do worlds toward the integration of a national conscience and the creation of some self-respect in an industry which, denying its possibilities of being an art will surely soon be hit by the apathy of the audiences which it has failed to amuse or instruct.

Bill Likes His New Position in Ponce

IN PONCE there were more conferences with the company representatives and a day or two in the [illegible] in the blue painted [illegible] maintained by the company for distinguished guests and arriving employes.

There [illegible] of a [illegible] work Nevis and Bill [illegible] few days Nevis was perfectly happy. Life seemed to her [illegible] the tropics. [illegible]

The bath [illegible] was an enormous affair, a large sunken bath. "How marvelous!" said Nevis. Only there wasn't any hot water. [illegible] hot water between friends?"

In a company Ford they drove five miles out to the new abode on the sugar plantation and inspected it. [illegible] completely unfurnished. [illegible] "I thought [illegible]" gasped Nevis, conscious of the [illegible] of housekeeping [illegible] she had brought from New York. "I did too," said Bill [illegible] to furnish the houses [illegible] explained the representative [illegible] longer, however. He [illegible] milk and light and rent [illegible] and seemed to think [illegible] enough.

NEVIS GOES SHOPPING

So Nevis shopped, with the friendly wife of the plantation manager. Furniture in Ponce cost, she discovered, a small fortune. She had checked out most of Bill's hundreds deposited in a San Juan bank for very inferior workes of General Gran-Grand Rapids workmanship.

"Don't forget a water cooler," advised Mrs. Jones, the manager's wife. "You must boil all your drinking water, you know."

They moved into the house on stilts. In front of it lay a tangle of undergrowth. Behind it banana trees including the apple banana and likewise mangoes and [illegible] and a bush of jessamine. In front too there was a white road bordered on either side by cocoanut palms. Along the road the oxcarts plodded, the sides of the patient creatures often running red. "Oh!" said Nevis in horror, and on the horns of the lead animal a slim brown lad, a red flower behind his ear and a sharp steel pointed stick in his hand. Beyond the road the fields on fields of cane delicately green and the low lovely mountains misty blue.

There were half a [illegible] families on the plantation and a [illegible] quarter [illegible] was a native store in [illegible] which one could not possibly find anything one wanted. A boy came around mornings for orders for food and ice and drove into Ponce to get it. The [illegible] own [illegible] carts in the [illegible] in the early morning [illegible] Nevis would lie in the [illegible] by moonlight. They were [illegible] full of ants, [illegible] and other [illegible] tions of nature. She [illegible] call Bill and get his breakfast by candle light as the company [illegible] did not go on until [illegible] was [illegible] and they weren't [illegible] Nevis' toaster and [illegible] apparatus were out of order. She bought canned heat and an alcohol lamp and managed over that. She struggled with the [illegible] stove and the stove-pipe [illegible] of lead pipe and "dangerous" [illegible] commented some [illegible] an earthquake.

EMPLOY A SERVANT

"I simply must get a servant," she told Mrs. Jones, who shrugged and said, "Well, it isn't easy."

It was a month before a [illegible] lackadaisical native girl [illegible] shift, [illegible] could be [illegible] to come and clean vegetables, get the midday dinner of sorts, dust the house and do the washing, primitively squatted at a wash tub under the house.

Nevis feet hurt. Her eyes ached from the sun. She was afraid of the harmless bright lizards which ran all over the walls. "They're assets," Mrs. Jones [illegible] her thinking of her 20 [illegible] in the tropics, a lean woman, very sallow, with tired eyes, "they eat mosquitoes and things."

"They may be assets to you, but they're liabilities to me," responded Nevis, but was only forced to change her opinion during an epidemic of flying ants, which came sailing through the screens, shed their wings all over the place and developed into repulsive, worm-like creatures which busily ate up all your furniture. "Sure," said Nevis, next door neighbor, "the other day I put my hand on my ice box door and went right through it, it's a shell inside. I hadn't the least idea!"

Bill's duties appeared to be rising at 5 oclock and riding over the acres of plantation with the assistant to the manager. He said the first night to Nevis: "Dont ask me to sit down, I can't."

Nor could he, horsemanship never having been his strong point. He bought linen riding breeches and puttees. He said, after they had been there a month or more

BILL FINDS EXCITEMENT

"I haven't learned much. As far as engineering is concerned, there isn't any use trying to use what little knowledge I still have here. Not unless we are transferred to the factory end of the job over near Mayaguez. All this job is, is riding about a thousand miles for 12 hours a day. They call it inspection. Well, I found two stills and one man cut up with a machete. There's excitement to it there never was in bonds."

He [illegible] boxes [illegible] in case he was knocked out.

"So [illegible]" wrote Nevis to Della, [illegible] a washout. Not that it [illegible]

There were three or four homesick [illegible] bachelors on the plantation and some married men with whose wives Nevis had nothing in common. And Mrs. Jones in the big house, a rock in time of trouble, helping in every [illegible] was even to offering Nevis her bathtub on any occasion when a hot bath was deemed desirable. For though Nevis' house contained a bathroom and a shower room as well, the latter including any quantity of spiders as large as tea cups, there was no hot water. It was of a sickly tepid temperature most of the time, the cistern being warmed by the sun.

NEVIS WAS WRONG

Nevis was wrong. Socially [illegible] was bound by laws which would have made Ward McAllister's look [illegible]. People were ranked according to position and wages, which [illegible] Bill at the very bottom of the [illegible] socially speaking.

But there was a catch in it. Bill had been sent down through the [illegible] of one of the most important men in the sugar industry, a large stockholder and an executive of the great New York company of which this happened to be a subsidiary. Which put Bill—and Nevis—at the top of the scale and sent them to the company dinner in Ponce given in honor of some New York executives traveling on inspection.

"Inspection," said Bill, who by now knew his sugar. "What a damned comic joke!"

The [illegible] from the [illegible] from the same [illegible] by nature [illegible]. Nevis returned them bored to death. Della sent down books and magazines and the day the mails came in was more than red letter, it was illuminated in gold and scarlet. They had Christmas at the Jones', a party of all of the American settlement, including the bachelors and going home Bill fell into an irrigation ditch. He said ruefully the next morning, holding a head as big as Grand Central Station: "I thought I could carry Prohibition liquor. But when it comes to champagne, sweet, and laced with native rum, I am as the child unborn in my capacity."

SHOPPING AND MOVIES

For entertainment, an occasional shopping excursion into Ponce or a perfectly incredible movie in a theater, partly open air, but filled with the most odoriferous specimens of humanity Nevis had ever encount[illegible] "Beats the BMT all hollow," said Bill, wrinkling his nose.

There were of course thrown [illegible] together. Yet, thought Nevis, as the weeks went by, they didn't seem to [illegible] much closer, save for self protection. She was always [illegible] Bill was dead. By seven [illegible] night he was in bed. He had taken off his saddle [illegible] had an excellent [illegible] before May [illegible] in May there were [illegible] and in June there were [illegible] and hurricanes [illegible] nothing to what we get when September comes," Mrs. Jones consoled Nevis, who, shivering, regarded a saffron yellow sky and an unnatural calm with terror.

There were [illegible] in a distant city caused a general feeling of depression when you stood on the back porch and watched the rats walking over the telegraph wires.

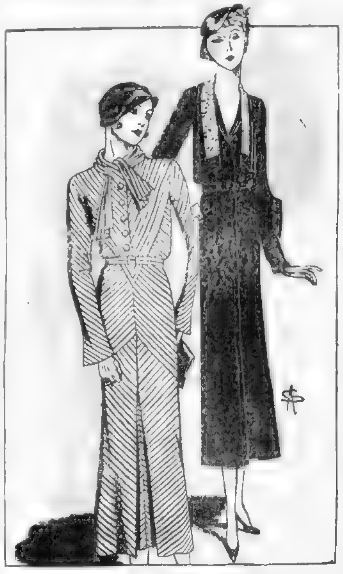
Dress of Diagonal Weave and Cut

SKETCHED IN PARIS



Lucien Lelong is especially successful with the diagonal costume. He uses diagonal stripes for both dresses and coats, posing the diagonal lines at interesting angles to get an effect of slenderness. For instance, in his tailored dress (in the sketch) he cuts both bodice and skirt with apex-shaped yokes. At the shoulders the lines are so placed as to get a widened effect: at the hip a narrowing one.

Daily True Story

Gigolo—Framed

JOHN HOWELL TAMERLANE IV just couldn't go back [illegible] of English tutors, private schools, doting fem[illegible] and his reputation as [illegible] best dance partner on [illegible] had quite a strain [illegible]

[illegible]

"I wont do it," he told her. Maine for the summer. Dawdling about on the yacht, teaching half baked debbies how to swim. Teaching over-done dowagers how to do the peabop when they ought to be looking after their grandchildren. Drinking tea, nibbling bon bons. Tennis, bridge, gossip—"

But John Howell, the Countess—

[illegible] Howell [illegible] Countess [illegible] You've never seen me.

SPEAKS TO FATHER.

"And I never will," stormed John Howell. "This whole mess is impossible. I'm going to be a man, I tell you, not a dancing poodle."

"I see, John Howell, that I will have to speak to your father."

And the ukase had been that John Howell Tamerlane IV go to Maine to spend the summer.

But he didn't. He walked out with nothing but his clothes and what was left of the $200 birthday check from his Uncle Andrew.

That was six weeks ago.

The [illegible] mid May [illegible] the sun beat down brightly on the benches in Washington Square. John Howell Tamerlane IV [illegible] alternately [illegible] in his hands. Then he slipped them into the pocket of his vest and picked a paper from the side pocket of his topcoat. He began to scan the want ad pages.

Plasterer, accountant, butler, houseman, salesman — scads of em for salesmen.

The girl on the bench across the walk rose and walked over to him.

"I don't like to intrude," she said, "but maybe I can appeal to you for help in a difficulty without your misunderstanding me. You look different from the types who usually sit on these benches. And I really do need help."

John Howell looked up at her, flushed and for once found himself floundering a bit for words. She had eyes that seemed to have little lights twinkling in them.

"Perhaps," said the Gorgeous Lady, somehow her voice seemed like a woodland brook, "we'd better be introduced."

"My name," said John Howell Tamerlane IV, "is John Howard."

[illegible]

[illegible] Mosat [illegible]

[illegible] she had [illegible] and the employment [illegible] congenial to men [illegible] socially unfit.

In effect, John Howard told her, with just a trace of bitterness in his smile, [illegible]

But when she smiled back at [illegible] he'd be [illegible] weeks when John Howard—introduced as a visiting cattleman from Fort Worth—played bridge, dined [illegible] homes [illegible] where he didn't happen to meet people he knew. But it was the daily contacts with Sonia Mason [illegible] kept him on the job.

Then they were married at the Municipal Chapel after he'd confessed his alias and she'd told him she'd recognized him from his pictures the first day. She agreed to go with him to meet his brother.

A FRAME-UP

The John Tamerlane III yacht was in the basin. It was there John Howell took his bride. And he felt extremely proud of the girl on his arm as he strode toward the after deck.

"Mother," he told the woman who had wanted him to go to Maine for the summer, "I want you to meet my wife."

She rose and extended a bejeweled hand.

"Countess," she declared, "I am delighted."

But after that first shock when Mrs. John Howell Tamerlane IV [illegible] her head against his [illegible] he just gripped her closer to him and whispered:

"What a splendid frameup!"

Of particular danger are street injuries and gunshot wounds. With the oncoming of the Fourth of July great precautions should be taken against accidents from blank cartridges and fireworks. Wounds caused by them may be contaminated by the tetanus germ.

Tetanus or lockjaw is a disease in which the body becomes stiff, the chewing and swallowing muscles won't work, and severe convulsions occur. It is a dangerous ailment.

With the use of antitoxin the mortality from this disease has been reduced at least one half. The fatal cases now are usually due to negligence on the part of the patient.

It's AGED FLAVOR

...that perfects the taste of CLICQUOT

THAT mellow flavor you enjoy in Clicquot Club Ginger Ale is produced by Time. Choice ingredients are AGED 6 MONTHS to ripen and mature before the blend is sweetened and combined with sparkling water. This method of blending results in aged flavor—a rare mellowness you find in Clicquot Club. Bottled in brand-new bottles.

GIRL OF 17 NEED NOT FEAR SPINSTERHOOD, SAYS MISS FAIRFAX

Even Though She Lacks 'Dates'

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

If you have ever heard of hopeless situations [illegible] this. Although I am [illegible] years old I have never had a date and [illegible] because I am shy [illegible] when I feel low [illegible] the other sex. I have a few secret admirers but [illegible]. One boy who works in a nearby [illegible] looks at me as though he would like to get acquainted, and he never looks at any other girl. Please tell me if I am [illegible] on the [illegible] land of spinsterhood.

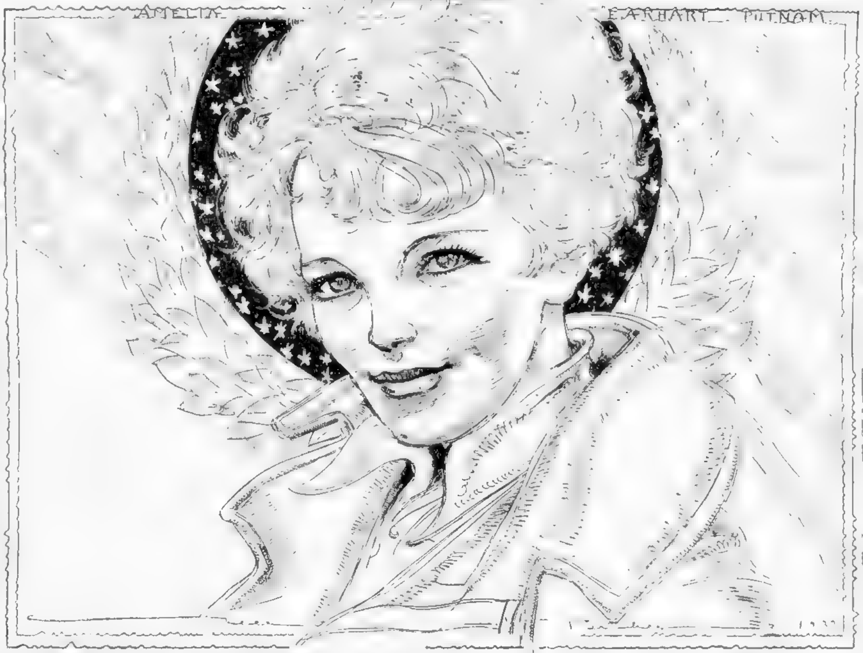
'AMERICAN GIRL' :: :: :: Drawn by Nell Brinkley



AN APPRECIATION [illegible] Charles Lindbergh [illegible] young American the first in the world who alone crossed the Atlantic in the air. She now is the first woman across the Atlantic flying also alone. History and romance together have offspring strange and exciting. That the girl who looks so like our greatest and first conqueror of the [illegible] between us and Europe, gentle like him, reserved and modest, [illegible] as he should be, the [illegible] across, and the first girl to do it, setting her name up beside him in history, is something to think about. More strange and more fantastic than fiction this reality. Even her mop of tousled [illegible] the same as [illegible] his ancestors [illegible] these inappeasable [illegible] seasoned [illegible].

Amelia Earhart Putnam looks like a boy [illegible] seems to be a most feminine woman. Even her name is old fashioned. And that strong amiable face might not be chosen for the chorus of a new show by a beauty judge, but it would be chosen by any man for a sister, a sweetheart, a friend, a wife to be loved and admired. It has [illegible] sweetness, [illegible] The daring must be there too, but to save my life I cannot [illegible] in the amiable countenance and the tender [illegible].

Mr. Putnam has a surprising wife. He [illegible] in the pictures of him receiving the news of her safety and her [illegible] to be proud of her, and he should be. Many men have surprising wives nowadays; they also did in other past ages, if we read our history, but not in the sort of intelligent and astounding ways as of now. But Mr. Putnam occupies the unique position alone of a husband having an attractive young wife who has flown the Atlantic alone, the very first woman since the world began to do it!

Mrs. Amelia has gone shopping in Europe, the first thing for clothes other than [illegible]. I wonder how it feels to be the first girl across the Atlantic by [illegible] a [illegible] I were her wouldn't you [illegible] would have to shop for a larger [illegible] measurement [illegible]?

Famous New Madeleine Cake Recipe by Den Dooven

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

ADD YOUR VANILLA to your egg and milk mixture, said Mr. Den Dooven in his cake lesson in the Martha Lee Cooking School. And the flavor will be more evenly distributed through your cake, and he proceeded to do [illegible] the batter he was preparing of his famous new Madeleine Cake.

MADELEINE CAKE

2 oz. almond paste, 1 tbsp. water, ¼ cup sugar

Work smooth almond paste and sugar by adding water gradually. Then add

4 cups flour, 2 tsps. salt
1 cup butter, 3 tsps. baking powder

And cream smooth. Beat together

1 cup egg yolks, 1 tsp. lemon extract (or 5 whole eggs), 2 tsps. vanilla
1½ cups sugar

Add this gradually to the creamed mixture, cream until light and fluffy, then add gradually 1 cup very cold milk. Mix thoroughly. Bake at 350 deg. F.

And here's the Moscovite Sponge Cake which, in spite of its name, Mr. Den Dooven said originated in Holland. He says that it is in his opinion the easiest and most perfect sponge cake that it is possible to make, and that it is the one he would choose from all his collection for regular home use.

MOSCOVITE SPONGE CAKE

5 whole eggs, 2 cups flour
4 egg yolks, ¼ cup butter
1 cup hot sugar

Beat eggs. Add sugar gradually and beat until light, then add the flour and butter chopped together until butter is in very small particles. Mix lightly. Bake in buttered mould sprinkled with chopped almonds. Bake at 325 deg. F.

And here's a frosting that's especially adapted to Mr. Den Dooven's Butter Loaf Cake, which was published on this page yesterday.

CREAM ICING

½ cup vegetable shortening.
2 cups confectioners sugar.
2 tsps. gelatine.
¼ cup milk.
1 tsp. salt.

Cream the shortening with half a cup of sugar. Add the gelatine dissolved in the milk and beat briskly. Then add the rest of the sugar and beat until light and creamy. For a coffee flavor use black coffee instead of the milk. For a lemon flavor add the grated rind of one lemon and lemon coloring.

Hints From the Beauty Box

PLASTIC surgery is used to correct outstanding ears and to decrease the size of the lobes. But as long as girls can curtain their ears with curly locks there will be no great rush to the offices of cosmetic surgeons. Touching the ear lobes with rouge throws it into a shadow, makes it less conspicuous. Only pretty ears should be out in the open.

THE fiddle-string neck needs anointing with lanolin or cocoa butter and vigorous massage. Place finger tips of both hands in an up and down line in the middle of the throat, stroke upward firmly to the ears. Follow with a brisk slapping with the palms. Bind on a cold moist compress, cover with a dry one, say prayers and go to bed.

PRESS the big toe inward by wearing a narrow shoe, and the point will gradually increase in size. Such a condition foretells the arrival of a bunion, than which there are few foot defects more painful or disfiguring to the contour of the human pedal [illegible]

Cold Shouldering Baseball for a Change

On the fields of sport there is no spectacle like that of a college boat race. Hockey, football, baseball, track may produce more thrills. But on sport's canvas there is no picture like that of two, three, five 8-oared crews, oars flashing in the westering sun, bronzed backs bending in rhythmic unison, driving the long, lean shell down the water lanes leading to their bows' objective and their hearts' desire. Breathes not a man with soul so dead as not to thrill to such a picture? Sometimes there is more than a picture. Sometimes there is a real race, a soul stirring struggle, with bows locked from flagfall to finish, and a test of stamina, endurance, grit, gameness and—pardon the expression—pure and unadulterated fighting "guts," such as no other sport can offer. The experts will tell you that no sport demands such an intensive drain on stamina and endurance as a boat race over the real championship distance of three miles. If ever an athlete has to be in the proverbial "pink," if ever the physical mechanism has to be attuned to such a concert pitch that it is near physical perfectness, it's each and every member of a crew that faces a real race over a three-mile watery stretch. The three-mile rowing race is such a drain on vitality and stamina that most of the contests are rowed at the mile, or the mile and a half. It's only a crew brought up to the distance through long gruelling weeks of preparation that paddles to the starting line for a three mile race.

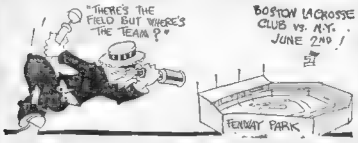
THE DOG FIGHT ON THE CHARLES

Tomorrow Boston is going to have the privilege of viewing one of those magnificent rowing pictures. We Hub fans not only will see one of the most beautiful pictures on the sports canvas but are going to be thrilled by a race that will rival the picture. Unbeaten Syracuse, Cornell of the age-old rowing traditions, and Host John Harvard meet on the classic Charles in what rowing enthusiasts say will be one of the most cockle of the heart warming "dog fights" of the year. In rowing parlance, friend fans, a "dog fight" is one of those rough and tumble, ding-dong battles fought tooth and nail from the crack of the pistol to the crossing of the line—one of those contests in which each will be out to outgame the other, row the heart out of him, launching spurt after spurt in ceaseless endeavor to shake off the other fellow and make him quit. Tomorrow's race will be great for the spectator. It'll be plain h—l for the oarsman.

There never has been a rowing year quite like this one, never a season in which the crews appeared so evenly matched, or in which there were so many hair-line finishes. Two arms' length finishes already have been rowed and more are bound to come. Yale, Syracuse and California alone are unbeaten. But Yale and Syracuse only have competed in one race. Harvard lost by a whisker to Pennsy. Penn after trailing Yale and Columbia in one race, came back to beat the Navy, which had beaten Columbia. Cornell was beaten by about a hand's breath by Yale. If Harvard should beat Yale in their annual duel and Cornell should win at Poughkeepsie, pray tell us brethren, what crew will be Eastern champion?

A better line on the college crews may be offered after tomorrow's races. In addition to the Harvard, Cornell and Syracuse tussle here on the Charles, Penn, Princeton and Columbia will race for the Childs Cup on the Harlem. Three weeks in the offing, June 20, is the Blue Ribbon event of collegiate rowing, the annual Poughkeepsie Regatta, in which the cream of the college crews from the Atlantic will face the Pacific's two standard bearers, California and Washington. Eight crews will go to the starting line at Poughkeepsie. Syracuse has drawn the inside lane. Here are the drawings—Syracuse 1, California 2, Washington 3, M. I. T. 4, Cornell 5, Navy 6, Columbia 7 and Penn 8. Drawings will not count so much this year as before. For the first time the crews will be sent through the middle arch of the big bridge and that means the start will be made from the middle of the river and no crew can claim aid or handicap because of benefits of tide or wind shelter of inside lanes. It is not yet ascertained just what crews will compete in the Olympic rowing tryouts on Lake Quinsigamond, Worcester.



"THERE'S THE FIELD BUT WHERE'S THE TEAM?"
BOSTON LACROSSE CLUB VS. N.Y. JUNE 2ND!
FENWAY PARK

From New York they have announced the Professional Lacrosse League schedule and we note Boston is billed to open at Fenway Park on June 2, which is only six days off, against the N. Y. Giants . . . But as far as is known, Boston hasn't even got a team yet and no one here seems to know who's who or what's what . . . Why keep it a secret? . . . They say the games will start at 8:15 o'clock nightly and end at 10:15 . . . Prices will be 50 cents and $1 . . . The "league" is made up of four cities, New York, Boston, Baltimore and Toronto . . . Just to show the cock-eyed world Pen Hallowell, the Harvard star, who has a penchant for turning in double victories, has nothing on him, Joe McCluskey the Fordham Flash won 2 mile, 1 mile and half-mile races in the dual meet with C. C. N. Y. . . . They are trying to get Fordham Joe to race Juan Zabala, the Argentinian distance runner who holds the world's 30,000 meter record, in a special race at the Metropolitan Championships next Sunday . . . Paul DeBruyn, the Boston Marathon winner and Willie Ritola also have been asked to start.

The much talked about Ernie Schaaf vs. Charlie Retzlaff match still is on the fire . . . Ernie wants to box Walker and Levinsky, too, but they're dodging him . . . Sammy Fuller will be ready for the wars again as soon as the cuts over his eyes are healed . . . Captain Angus Walters says the Bluenose is ready for another international fishermen's race this year, but doubts if the Gertie Thebaud will want to take another beating . . . Wake up you Gloucestermen! . . . Horace Ford, back now with the Braves, represents one of the biggest mistakes made by the Braves . . . Between Ford and Pi Traynor the Braves picked Horace and let Pi go to Pittsburgh . . . Mrs. William Randolph Hearst and Bill Farnsworth have been in Washington attempting to get Secretary of the Treasury Mills to withdraw excessive taxes on sporting events in which Charity receives a large portion of the proceeds . . . Sport today is a necessity and there is no denying it is overtaxed . . . Everyone from Gov. Joseph B. Ely down will be at the Statler on June 11 when they're going to tender Paul Bowser a dinner in testimony of the work he has done for the unemployed . . . Fans desiring to show their appreciation should get in touch with Frank Smith, 115 Chauncy st.

JIMMY FOXX WHOLE TEAM BY HIMSELF

By JOE CASHMAN

It would be far more appropriate if that daily baseball data entitled American League Leaders was called Jimmy Foxx' Diamond Diary.

The leading hitter is Foxx. The leading home run manufacturer is Foxx. The leading [illegible] is Foxx. The most runs have been batted in by Foxx. The most hits have been made by Foxx.

The only departments he doesn't lead in are in missing doubles and triples [illegible]

Jimmy Foxx

The boy wonder of the champion Philadelphia Athletics has a batting average today of .416, which is just eight points higher than the all-time major league mark of .438, turned in by Hugh Duffy, Red Sox scout, way back in the early nineties.

And when he put the ball over the left field wall and onto a roof across the street in the first inning of the opener of the current Sox-A's series at the Fens, he brought his home run total up to 15 in 35 games. At that rate he would hit [illegible] in a full season or six more than Babe Ruth's highest mark.

Foxx Outguessing League Pitchers

Jimmy has been a very [illegible] hitter ever since he [illegible] with a mark of [illegible] but his earliest seasons average is almost [illegible] points under what he is hitting and last season he batted for only .291.

Seeking the reason for his big improvement with the stick, we asked certain of the Red Sox.

The answer was that Jimmy is guessing better than ever this year.

It seems that he is one of those hitters who figure out what the pitcher is going to be [illegible] and get set for it. When they guess correctly [illegible] of the ball. When they are wrong they look very bad indeed.

Foxx is as versatile as he is classy. He came up to the A's as a catcher, became a fine first-sacker and now is playing a first-class game at third base.

Longest Homer Ever Seen at Fenway

Though he is now serving his seventh season in the majors he won't be 25 years old until next October. He went up to the A's from the Eastern Shore League when he was only seventeen. He was far from being a major league performer at that time but he could hit a ball so hard that he was never sent back.

The rivals have an afternoon off today. They'll play a single game at the Fens tomorrow and a twin bill at Braves Field Sunday.

Don Will Gamble His Life for Speed

Gardone, Italy, May 27 (AP)—Kaye Don, British speedboat driver, today decided to abandon his attempt to set a new world speedboat record on Lake Garda with his Miss England III.

"I wish the boat builders would think less of my life and more about speed, which is what I want in a boat," Don said. "After all, risk is my stock in trade."

Hickman-Kwariani Garden Semifinal

Toots Mondt has signed Herman "Cannonball" Hickman of Tennessee to clash with "Koko Kola" Kwariani, the "Russian Stonewall," in the semifinal to the finish mat bout between "Gentleman" Jack Washburn and Sandor Szabo which will be staged at the Boston Garden on next Wednesday night.

CORNELL PICKED TO DEFEAT HARVARD

Cornell first, Harvard second and Syracuse third is the general selection for the outcome of the big triangular crew regatta on the Charles tomorrow.

Whiteside sees this triangular duel as the most crucial for his varsity eight. It will be the first indication as to the probable outcome of the Harvard-Yale classic at New London next month.

Cornell is a favorite because of that record breaking race for the Carnegie cup in which Yale beat the Ithacans by only a fifth of a second. In a trial spin on the Charles yesterday, the Cornell boat worked impressively.

Another record may be set on the Charles by the Cornell crew tomorrow. The present record, held by Navy of 9 minutes, 11 2-5 seconds stands unequalled since 1930.

Whiteside Former Pupil of Ten Eyck

Apart from the battle between the three strong varsity eights, the race tomorrow will see a battle of coaches' wits, with master and pupil pitting their crew knowledge against each other.

Charlie Whiteside, Harvard's young coach, learned the rowing business from 81-year-old Jim Ten Eyck. Three years ago, Whiteside was the assistant to "the Old Man" at Syracuse, and would in all probability become coach at Syracuse had he not accepted Harvard's offer.

The eights in tomorrow's regatta are fairly evenly matched in weights and man power but Cornell has the smoothest stroking boatload in the regatta.

Frequent changes have taken place in the Harvard shell. [illegible] tomorrow Stroke Jerry Cassedy will have a combination of [illegible] and second varsity sweep [illegible] behind him.

Two conspicuous changes place Capt. Tom Armstrong back in his former position at No. 4 in the varsity boat, and Al Nickerson in place of the veteran Waldo Holcombe at bow.

Hovey and Erickson Have Survived Shifting

The Harvard stern four remains unchanged with Cassedy, Saltonstall, Bacon and Bancroft retaining their positions. In the Harvard bow four, Charlie Hovey and Joe Erickson are permanent fixtures and have never been subjected to a second varsity shift.

Tomorrow's water carnival will mark the end of the short rowing season for the Crimson. The Whiteside navies will soon be off for Red Top to get in shape for the four-mile grind against Yale next month.

Newton-Waltham Meet on Diamond

Newton high school, leader in the Suburban League baseball race, will meet its ancient rival, Waltham high, at the Dickinson Memorial Stadium in Newtonville this afternoon.

GRID REFORM AT YALE IS APPROVED

New York, May 27 (AP)—Yale's athletic right-about face caught the college sports world unawares today and left it astonished and, perhaps, mildly aghast as well.

Only scattering comment on old Eli's plan of sharp curtailment of intercollegiate competition in favor of intramural sports was available as most college heads preferred to take "time out" and study the report.

What comment there was however, was distinctly favorable, although here and there a dissenting voice was heard.

The Yale plan, designed to go into effect, in part at least, in 1934 after the residential house plan is established, would cut the varsity football schedule to five games, all against major opponents; bring about an endowment fund to cover athletic expenses, and, at the same time, sharply cut those expenses; provide for free admission of undergraduates to all contests, and make all students, regardless of scholastic standing, eligible for house teams under amateur coaching.

There are many other provisions in the plan drawn up by a survey committee and approved by President James Rowland Angell but these were the most important.

Most interested attached naturally to the football phase of the plan. Yale's football schedule for 1932 calling for seven games, already has been mapped out and so has the program for 1933. The five-game season probably will go into effect in 1934.

All-British Finals for Amateur Title

Muirfield, Scotland, May 27 (AP)—E. A. McRuvie, Eric Fiddian, John De Forest and Lionel Munn, all British born, today advanced to the semi-final round of the British amateur golf championship which has been won only twice by a non-Briton.

McRuvie, Walker Cup player, defeated John Reynard 5 and 4 while Fiddian, the other most fancied player, defeated William Tulloch 3 and 2. Fiddian is the present English close champion.

De Forest defeated Sam MacKinnon [illegible] 1 up.

What the Stars Did

By the Associated Press

Gerald Walker, Tigers—Drove out three singles against White Sox and stole three bases.

George Earnshaw, Athletics—Held Red Sox to four hits and struck out five in six-inning game.

Lou Gehrig, Yankees—His home run with bases filled sank Senators.

Don Hurst, Phillies—His home run and two singles helped beat Braves.

TRIBE SHOWS COURAGE IN OPENER

Philadelphia, Pa., May 27—Rather surprised but not a bit discouraged over losing the first game and falling out of first place, the Boston Braves came out to Baker Bowl today determined to smother the last-place Philes and even the count in the series.

Manager Bill McKechnie nominated Ed Brandt, his southpaw ace, for mound duty, which was natural after the way the Phils hammered four of his best righthanders in the opener.

Ray Benge was again the Quakers' choice. He was listed to start yesterday, but at the last minute Phil Collins was picked.

Only a half-game back of the roof, the Braves can regain it this p. m. providing they win and the Cubs, who open a series with the Reds, are beaten.

If the Braves win and Cubs lose the standing will be:

Boston	23	13	.639
Chicago	23	14	.622

The visitors had a fine opportunity to increase their lead in the first game here, as the Cubs were idle, but they couldn't find a pitcher to stop the local slugge s and were beaten out 17 to 13 in one of the dizziest contests ever played anywhere.

Showed Fighting Spirit, Though Trailing 12 to 2

Trailing at one time by a score of 12 to 2, the hostiles kept right on fighting and at the close of the seventh frame were leading 13 to 12. They would have won if they could have found a pitcher worthy of the name. They couldn't, and the Phils scored five more runs in the eighth to settle the battle.

"Huck" Betts, who in two previous starts against the Shottonmen had hung up shutouts, started on the Tribal mound. After being found for three hits and a walk before anybody was out in the first, he was yanked in favor of Frankhouse. Before the frame was over the natives had six runs. They added three more in the second, and the same number in the third, when Frankhouse gave way to Cunningham, who pitched three scoreless innings and might have chalked up a win, if he hadn't been forced to give way to a pinch hitter in the seventh.

Cantwell, who has been pitching great relief ball, was the final and losing flinger.

How I Got My Start In Baseball

By BILLY URBANSKI
(Braves Shortstop)
As Told to Joe Cashman

Baseball has always been my own business. When I finished playing in school at Perth Amboy, N. J., I jumped right into semi-pro ranks. Nobody recommended or sought me. I asked for the job.

Billy Urbanski

Marty Cavanaugh, old Detroit shortstop, saw me play against the famed Bushwick nine of New York and offered me a berth on an independent team he was managing in Portland, Me. I accepted.

While playing at Portland, I impressed a scout of the Jersey City Club and was signed by the Skeeters.

They farmed me out to Lawrence in the old Greater Boston Twilight League and later to different clubs in the old New England League.

Finally, I was recalled and sold to Montreal.

I was never the property of a Massachusetts team until I joined the Braves, but most of my diamond career has been spent in the Bay State.

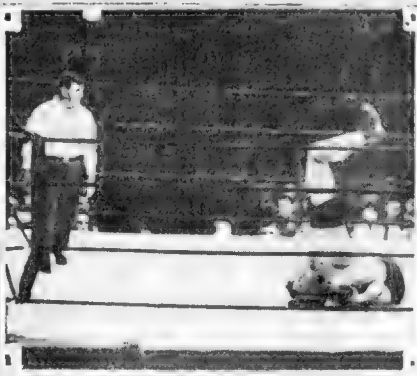
Tommy Armour, the noted golf champion from Detroit, Mich., and holder of the British open golf championship title, with his wife as they sailed from New York for England on the S. S. Berengaria, where he will defend his title at the Sandwich tournament. (International News Photos.)



There must be some reward for perseverance. Gus Sonnenberg believes so, anyhow. The former Dartmouth grid star scored a victory over Ed George last night at the Arena after two previous unsuccessful attempts. Sonny is on the floor in the above photo, but didn't remain in that position long.

Peyton Talbot, former Missouri Conference hurdle champion, makes first test of newly installed water jump of the Olympic games' 3000-meter steeplechase course. As Peyton shows in the picture, it will be a real hazard for the runners, the water on the far side of the hurdle being 12 feet wide and graduating from 3 feet to 6 inches in depth. The water jump is always one of the most spectacular obstacles of the classic Olympic event.

Joe McCluskey, of Fordham, America's outstanding steeplechaser, is an Olympic candidate.

SONNENBERG BEATS GEORGE IN HECTIC BATTLE

SEEKS RETURN BOUT WITH DEGLANE

By JACK CONWAY

Gus Sonnenberg is today once more the old Dynamiter of Dartmouth. He reached the wrestling heights once more when he scored a spectacular victory over Ed Don George before 9000 fans at Paul Bowser's show at the Arena.

Sonny laughed at the [illegible] heat as [illegible] for the [illegible] received at the hands of George. Gus was [illegible] in his dressing room following his win over the man who stripped him of the heavyweight championship.

"I am my old self again," said Gus. "I guess spring water is better than some of the stuff I used to drink. I felt very strong all through my bout with George.

"It is my hope to get DeGlane again. I think I can lick the Frenchman."

George was a bit downcast as he came out from under the shower.

"I hate a squawker, but I think I am justified in saying Sonny won by breaking all the rules," said George. "He clipped me from the rear when ordered to the center of the ring. At the time he was cringing outside the ropes. He broke all the rules leading up to the final toss. They should not have allowed him to use a hammer."

Sonny won the first fall in 37m. 5s. George the second in 18m. while the deciding fall went to the old Dynamiter in 9m. 10s.

Browning and Sherry in 30-Minute Draw

Jim Browning and Jack Sherry engaged in a stirring 30m. draw. The tussle was crowded with action from the time the big fellows swept into action until Browning took three open hand pastes at Sherry's face following the ending of the match.

The other semi-final which brought together Nick Lutze and Casey Kazanjian also ended in a draw after 30m. of battling.

Bull Martin of New Jersey and Mike Getteson of Russia went 8m. to a draw. Stanley Pinto of Australia and John Spellman of Brown were also tearing each other apart on even terms at the end of 5m. of milling.

Lee Wykoff of St. Louis tossed Rex Smith of South Dakota in 2m. 8s. with an inside crotch hold, body lift and slam. Alan Eustace of Kansas defeated Paul Jasinski of Finland in 3m. 1s. with a head chancery over shoulder.

Boris Demetroff of Bulgaria and Regis Siki of Abyssinia went [illegible] to a draw. Freddy Meyer of Chicago knocked off Jack Reynolds of New York in 10m. 12s. with an inside crotch hold, body lift and slam.

Wong Bock Cheung [illegible] didn't quite [illegible] with Pat Fraley of Canada. Honors were 50-50 at the end of 5m. [illegible] Macaluso, former Colgate [illegible] and Pat McGill of Wakefield were even at the end of 10m.

Mrs. Sonnenberg Sees Dynamiter Beat Ed George

Mrs. Gus Sonnenberg broke her rule against attending wrestling bouts in which her famous husband appears and made an unexpected appearance at the ringside at the Arena shortly before the old Dynamiter and Ed George entered the ring.

"If George can lick Gus with me present I'll step into the ring, shake his hand and congratulate him," said Mrs. Sonnenberg. "But he can't do it."

After Gus won, Mrs. Sonnenberg was jubilant. She sent her father, Jack Elliot, to the press row to thank Jack Conway for following her tip to pick Sonny to win.

Incidentally, Gus' victory boosted Conway's average. Jack, however, says the credit for the selection belongs to Mrs. Sonnenberg as he was figuring on naming George to win when she convinced him to trail along with the old Dynamiter again. Jack also called the draw bouts in the Sherry-Browning and Lutze-Kazanjian matches.

BOSTON GROUP MAY BUY SOX

Dame Rumor is again busy with the business of the Red Sox. The latest gossip going the rounds has a group of local business men buying the controlling interest of the Boston Red Sox and retaining the services of President Bob Quinn as [illegible].

So persistent is this report that official announcement will be forthcoming in the very near future, it is said. It is a known fact that last winter an attempt was made to pool sufficient money to purchase the club. This deal failed to materialize. The record-breaking crowd that turned out for the recent Braves-Phillies game may have inspired this same group to make another attempt to take over the reins.

American Net Team Reach Title Finals

Auteuil, France, May 27 (AP)—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody and Elizabeth Ryan, leading American doubles combination, today advanced to the finals of the French tennis championships in a three-set victory over Senorita Elia de Alvarez of Spain and Josane Sigart of Belgium. The scores were 6-4, 1-6, 6-1.

FIELD'S RING CAREER FADING

Chicago, May 27 (AP)—Jackie Fields, 25-year-old world's welterweight champion, is suffering from impaired vision that may endanger his ring career.

This was exclusively learned by the Associated Press after reports had been circulated that Fields had been taken to the Michael Reese Hospital in Chicago as a suspected appendicitis case. Dr. Harry S. Gradle, an eye specialist, is in charge.

Dr. Gradle, while insisting that Fields' trouble may be temporary, said today that a detached retina is always suspected wherever a blur occurs in the vision.

Fields regained the world's welterweight championship only last November, recapturing the title from Lou Brouillard of Boston.

Fields won the 147-pound crown from Joe Dundee of Baltimore on a foul in a battle fought in Detroit three years ago. Later he lost it to Young Jack Thompson, who, in turn, dropped it to Brouillard.

GOOD THEATER NEWS; BAD NEWS FOR THE KIDDIES

By GILBERT SELDES

GILBERT SELDES

SEVERAL CORRESPONDENTS have written to assure me that "The Song and Dance Man," by George M. Cohan, was made into a silent movie several years ago, and one has even praised the movies for making the picture well. What impressed me about these letters was the warmth of enthusiasm for Mr. Cohan; it is a thing you feel instantly when he comes on the stage, and a Cohan opening night has quite a special flavor. That this enthusiasm goes out through the country is a reminder that Cohan belongs to the era when the stage was a national institution, not merely a metropolitan one; and by a coincidence a bit of news suggests that even in our cities the theater could be made a more prosperous and more lively place.

By Thousands

Miss Katharine Cornell, playing in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," announced (on a Saturday night, I believe) over the radio that she would give a special Sunday performance, with a flat admission of $1 to all parts of the house; the proceeds were to go to a fund for the teachers of the Chicago public schools. The police communicated with Miss Cornell to inquire how many men she wanted to handle the audience, and she suggested one for each door. By 10 the next morning 5000 people were storming the theater, and in the end 15,000 had to be turned away.

That gives you a fair idea (even if the figures aren't exact) of how dead the theater really is. It suggests a lot of other practical things for the business men of the theater to consider. (Fifteen thousand dollars is a good week's take for the average show; it is twice as much as many successful shows take in.)

Bonds and Taxes

Alan B. Walsh writes

The relief bond issue which you and your paper have been advocating for about two years is the remedy to cure the patient. The tax is the bill that he pays for the cure. He will be glad to pay it if he has it, but you can't get blood out of a stone. Some gigantic emergency relief is as necessary right now to prevent a national peril as the war relief billions were necessary to prevent an international peril. Then when business is good again tax it prudently as much as it will bear. If we cannot pay off all the debt in this generation let some of it carry over to the next generation; they would rather inherit good business with a debt than to inherit a panic free from debt."

Mr Walsh exaggerates my advocacy; I am not an economist, and in dealing with economics can only speculate on the motives of whatever proposals are made. When Mr. Hearst suggested a great bond issue for public works more than a year ago I was impressed by the two [illegible] lines of objection, that it was premature and that it was belated. In my simple way, I thought it couldn't be both at once, and I particularly wanted to know why the people who said that the bond issue would not bring relief in time were so sure that within ten months we would need no relief.

The economists now assure us that we had to go through a period of d[illegible] (which the bond issue would have checked) before we could go to work. They say that over-capitalization has been drained out, and that now we need a little steady inflation. I wonder how they are so sure that all the deflation was necessary—and also wonder whether the inflation of a bond issue can be put over after their vicious attacks upon it.

I think Mr Walsh's point about the next generation is interesting. A considerable number of those now paying taxes had nothing to do with the war, which, among other things, put a tremendous burden upon us. They not only did not vote for the war, but actually missed the supposed pleasures of being in the front line, shooting Germans and being maimed by Germans. It hardly seems fair to tax them for our pleasure. Yet, if they have to pay, they can justifiably shove a little of the burden on their children's children.

NEW TAX RACKET BARED

This is the 25th in a series of articles exposing the tax collection racket, a form of legalized extortion which is fattening the pockets of constables and victimizing reputable citizens of Massachusetts.

This is the story of a state income tax bill that grew from $1.01 to $9.65 and landed the recipient in Charles st. jail.

"To begin with," writes the complainant," let me offer my humble thanks to the Boston Evening American for the manner in which it is exposing the tax racket.

NOTHING TO TAX

"Here is what happened to me. For failure to file a State income tax, even though I did not make enough salary to pay any tax, I received a constable's warrant ordering me to pay $1.01. Being out of work at the time and not having the $1.01, I failed to make any reply to the warrant.

"Several days after receiving the first warrant I received what was marked 'final warrant.' On that occasion the tax had jumped to $2.84. I got in communication with the tax collector's office at 48 Court st. A Mr. Stuart Martin at that office informed me I would have to make the payment to Constable Grady of Jamaica Plain, the man who sent the warrant. I called him at the same place and made an appointment to meet him and pay the $2.84.

"When I arrived at the tax collector's office he told me the charges had jumped to $7.65. No amount of talk would change the figure, even though he told me a few hours before to bring in $2.84 and he would accept it.

"At the time I had $5 on me. I offered him the $5 but he refused it. He then placed me under arrest and took me to Charles st. jail. When we arrived at the jail he informed me that the tax was then $9.65, because he had to add the taxi fare and commitment fee.

"At the jail I explained my predicament to Deputy Sheriff Morris and he very kindly loaned me $5 so I could pay the bill. At the time I was a widower with a young daughter at home alone.

"Several days later I learned they had no right to charge me commitment fee as I was not confined to the jail. They never received me, in other words.

"I made inquiries at City Hall after my experience and I learned that the constables, a few favored ones, have the state income tax warrants all 'sewed up.'

"These constables have cards printed which state that they are officers and agents of the commissioner of corporations and taxation in this Commonwealth. This is an impersonation and should be brought to the attention of the public. I will send you one of these cards."

The printed form used by a constable with an office at 44 School st. who gets a generous share of delinquent bills to collect for the state income tax department reads

"To———

"The Commonwealth of Massachusetts has placed in my hands for collection an unpaid income tax assessed against you in 1931, amounting to ———. I hold a warrant to seize your property or arrest you, according to law. Unless I receive check or money order Made Payable to Me at Once for the above amount I shall proceed as instructed in the warrant which I hold.

"Officer and Agent to Commissioner of Corporations and Taxation of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts."

VETS DEFENDED

The arrest of World War veterans in Everett and Chelsea, the latter resulting in the arrest of a constable for assault and a stern rebuke by Judge Cutler in Chelsea Court, when he sentenced the constable to serve two months, prompted the following letter

"Tax Editor:

"In regard to the poll and old age pension tax and the way citizens are tortured during these times, with thousands starving, I think it is a downright shame that any veteran who offered his life willingly in 1917 to save our country and the rest of us from Hell should be hounded and mistreated.

"I don't see why any veteran should pay taxes. I don't see why the government makes them pay it when they have already paid. Open up the breweries and put the men to work. We've wasted enough money on Federal agents. For the Lord's sake give the boys back what was taken away from them in 1919. We demand it.

"Mary E. Eddy, Boston, Mass."

Another instalment of the tax scandal investigation will be published in the Boston Evening American tomorrow.

Mr. John J. Cremmen, Advertising Manager,
Boston Evening American,
Boston, Massachusetts

Dear Mr. Cremmen:

We are glad to state that the gratifying results of the Paine Furniture Company "Two Day May Sale" proved our faith in the buying power of Boston and New England people, and the increasing stability of this section as a responsive retail market.

Paine quality merchandise, priced to offer exceptional values, and properly advertised, brought to our store the greatest crowd in our history.

One of the most significant facts was, that the bulk of purchases were for cash. We also opened many new charge accounts.

Naturally, the seasonable merchandise brought the greatest response, and in many instances the advertised items were entirely sold out.

We believe that the Boston Evening American, in which our regular advertising appears, and which carried twenty-four full columns in Thursday's issue to promote this sale, is entitled to a great deal of credit for the splendid results we obtained.

Yours very truly,

PAINE FURNITURE COMPANY

NERO DID NOT THROW FUEL ON FLAMES

By B. C. FORBES

Nero merely fiddled harmlessly while Rome burned.

In America not a few supposedly responsible citizens are throwing kerosene in the flames of destruction now raging here.

Hot-Heads Riot in Congress

First: W[illegible] Congress? Instead of promptly adopting a [illegible] and effecting wise economies, a group of hot-heads, blind to the stark realities afflicting the unemployed and almost everybody else, kicked over the traces, rebelled against their own chosen leaders, derailed taxes and every other constructive form of legislation and plunged the country into shockingly distressing conditions. Nor has this suicidal exhibition yet ceased. The ruler of Rome was innocent in contrast with the mischievous conduct of many of our jackass misrepresentatives and senators.

Second: America's bankers have been furnished with abundant means to supply credit. But how have they used—misused—the funds so freely placed at their disposal, funds supplied by [illegible] and me, taxpayers?

They have simply seized upon this additional opportunity to look out for [illegible], the money, for the most part, has simply gone into bank vaults, swelling the too-many millions already hoarded there. There has been no important expansion in commercial lending. From all accounts, it has steadily become harder and harder to obtain loans on even the best real estate. Brokers' loans, which, thanks to the co-operation of banks, soared to over $8,500,000,000 in 1929, have been squeezed down to little more than $400,000,000. And the squeezing process continues daily.

And, of course, each security loan cast out by banks means throwing another fagot on the flames of destruction and disaster.

Railway Consolidations Held Up

Third: We were led to believe on the highest authority that vast railway consolidations would be achieved long before now. But the Interstate Commerce Commissioners, doubtless overworked, have failed to give final decisions. Not only so, but [illegible] commissioners' attitude toward needy railroads has aggravated uncertainty and resulted in the annihilation of railway bond and stock values by the billion.

Fourth. Short-selling is still permitted by the brokers constituting the governors of the New York Stock Exchange. Admittedly, public clamor induced them, very tardily, to impose safeguards against unrestricted bear attacks. But that enough was not done was [illegible] admitted by the exchange [illegible] the other day when, market values having already been slaughtered to ruinous depths, they ordered brokers to tighten the margins required against short sales.

Surely the time has come to call a halt and to spend every energy, every resource, to stay the increasingly menacing debacle.

Financial News, Stocks, Bonds and Comment

LIVE STOCKS IN WALL STREET FOR TODAY

WHILE the market was reactionary most of today a better undertone was displayed with liquidation showing signs of drying up and the promise of better action given at Washington.

Scattered Pressure on Tobaccos Felt

Scattered pressure on the tobaccos and utilities today, the groups which had been among the hardest hit in recent sessions, combined with profit-taking induced by yes[illegible] a mixed trend to prices. Losses were small, however and activity showed a considerable decline in most of the trading.

Sturdy Showing Is Made by U. S. Steel

During much of the session today a particularly sturdy performance was given by U. S. Steel. This tended to keep reactionary influences in check. American Can was another firm spot but American Telephone was soft. Oils were steady with Standard Oil of New Jersey again displaying support.

Report Increase in Short Account

Judging from commission house gossip the almost prohibitive restrictions imposed by the Stock Exchange against selling short have [illegible] entirely checked such operations. It is reported some new short lines have been put out during this week's decline greatly accelerating the fall of prices, especially in shares with thin bids. Considering that short sales can only be made at a lower price than the preceding quotation as well as the absence of any rally large enough to permit speculative selling in any great amount current reports would appear to be [illegible] exaggerated.

PX Interest Money Ready

It is understood that sufficient money is on deposit now to meet the next interest payment on Paramount Publix bonds.

—SPECTATOR—Says:

The market was talked into a rally. Reports from Washington indicating a brighter outlook for the sales tax, combined with rumors of banking conferences and support coming into the market, made the bears nervous and brought about a covering movement. The list was ripe for a rally anyway in view of the extent of the decline this week. As low as stocks may be, however, the fact still remains that news alone, and not talk, is the big need now if the market is to carry through.

Here and There

A decided change of sentiment will take place in Wall Street if the sales tax goes through. Action is expected by the first of next week. The report was around of a big powwow at the house on the corner, as J. P. Morgan & Co. is known. What significance, if any, was involved could not be determined . . . Talk was that a little support was provided throughout the list to make the liquidation more orderly for at one time certain stocks were just fading away.

* * *

Concerted banking action in the market is unlikely, however, until the news from Washington improves. On top of this is the outlook that the Lausanne conference will convene under a cloud next month . . . There has been some liquidation from the continent, especially Holland, where inflation talk is disliked.

Depreciation

A study of 100 fire insurance companies with assets of 1830 million dollars, show they had 33.6 per cent, or 614 millions invested in common stocks, [illegible] per cent or [illegible] millions, in bonds, and 10.6 per cent, or 194 millions, in preferred stock. These figures are as of the end of 1931 but are not based on market prices of that date.

One of these here what-do-you-call-them of the press gave me a thought the other day. I have a few of my own accord at times but this one I absolutely must credit to a newspaper man. He observes that since Harry Richman works for a Coffee concern on the air and sings "Let's Have Another Cup of Coffee," while Georgie Price is backed by a tea outfit as he warbles "Tea for Two," why shouldn't I cook up some ditty about enjoying one more mug of home brew? Made from good old Blue Ribbon, of course.

PRAISES FOR PAT

Pat Kennedy is anxious as can be to reach Boston, he gets so many fan letters from here, it seems . . . Pat is one fellow who keeps mail men busy, all right. During the time crooners were rising and falling he never would listen to those who wanted him to croon . . . Pat loves to sing better than any canary in the world. Crooning is vocal mockery in the estimation of this particular Kennedy Klan descendant. I have always encouraged him in this viewpoint, just as I do all worthy ideas advanced by boys in the band . . . We get along great, something I'm mighty happy to say . . . As for Walter Winchell, well, I suppose I really shouldn't let this opportunity slip me. Say, Walter, I see you're haunting New York again. Well, well, well! It's a good thing you kept "YAWITZ" about you [illegible] Is it true Walter you'd like to [illegible] of my fiddle some time just before I start playing" . . . I'm done [illegible]

Current mystery dramas positively curl my hair. It's a mystery to me why Dr. Watson and his friend never tire of taking the lid off that can in these Sherlock Holmes sketches . . . I'm glad Floyd Gibbons is coming back on the networks in a regular spot, no foolin' . . . They tell me a chap named Banny Weeks of Boston is heading for great things. In fact, there are some quite favorable rumblings about him in New York these days . . . Gee, this is rolling right along now. I'm enjoying it. Yowsah! Surely you subscribers will look in on us at Keith's. Please do! There's to be a big broadcast you know right from the stage tomorrow night between 7.30 and 8 o'clock via WBZ . . . Next Tuesday I'll be putting the weekly half hour through good old WNAC, from where it goes out all over everything . . . Aren't I the old boaster? . . . It's funny but every time I wave a baton in front of an orchestra it starts. Something happens on the down beat among music men while this typewriter has no respect for a slow whatever . . . No bluffing on this instrument so I'll conclude being one of the most colorful old concluders at large . . . Forgive me ladies and gentlemen, forgive me [illegible] a bit of tweet-tweet [illegible] twah, a touch of toodle-oodle and a fond cheerio. Your old Maestro bestows blessings on beautiful Boston, speaking for himself and all his University outcasts. Hear, hear! Alas, things have come to this—the end. Think of it. I've gone and written a column. I tell you ladies and gentlemen, I shouldn't have done it. Still, business is (or was) business.

LOFT RESULTS SHOW BUSINESS CAN BE HAD

By FRANK H. MELOON

Loft, Inc., big candy "chain," demonstrates with results that business can be had. It is significant that Loft is among the nation's heaviest advertisers. Secretary George M. O'Neil of Loft's tells me:

"Loft, Inc., reports for the first four months of 1932: Total sales of $4,663,615.61. An increase of $399,247.97—or 9.3 per cent.

"Loft also shows an increase in customers of 918,342—or nine per cent.—over the same period of 1931."

Chairman E. G. Buckland of the New Haven, president of the Railroad Credit Corp., previously described by this writer as "the financial genius of the New Haven," revives an adjective brought into prominence by the late President Theodore Roosevelt. Mr. Buckland did this when he described the co-operation between the two credit instruments set up at Washington to aid the railroads in their emergency as "bully."

E. G. Buckland

Speaking of railroads, numerous plans are being worked out which promise to afford them some relief from current conditions. There is for example the Budd product of a railroad car that runs on rubber pneumatic tires. Seemingly better than this is the less well known invention of a Boston man which makes it possible to run the same car either on the railroads or over the highways.

* * *

No railroad business originates on the main tracks. It all comes from a block or more away and must be similarly delivered. A railroad car capable of leaving the [illegible] and continuing on a [illegible] would seem to offer great possibilities. The Boston man [illegible] his patents and should be [illegible] thoroughly by the proper executives.

* * *

Suggestion originally offered by this writer that the products of sweatshops be compelled to carry a tag indicating their origin has been put into a bill which has just been passed to be engrossed by the Massachusetts Senate.

* * *

In an analysis of the behavior of prices, wages and living costs in depressions, issued today, Moody's Investors Service feels that wage rates have failed to decline in proportion to the decline in the cost of living. The result has been a net increase in the purchasing power of wage rates. Survey indicates that not only have wage rates been late in adjusting themselves to the lower cost of living, but also prices for finished goods have lagged well behind those for raw materials. Wage rates may not have declined, as Moody's suggests, but buying power has diminished. Wage rates mean nothing to the unemployed, since obviously they get no wages.

Prices Moderately Better in London

London, May 27 (AP)—Better Wall Street and Paris advices and less liquidation helped improve prices moderately on the stock exchange especially Australian mining shares. British issues dropped in the afternoon due to lack of support and the market closed uncertain.

ACCIDENTS ARE CAUSE OF HUGE ECONOMIC LOSS

By FRANK F. LOOMIS

Accidents in the United States are increasing every year taking a tremendous toll of American lives. Mortality statistics show accident as the sixth principal cause of deaths in this country.

During 1931, accidents were responsible for 100,000 deaths and 12,000,000 persons were injured by accidental means. The economic loss due to accidents last year was over $500,000,000.

An analysis of personal accident claims paid in the last ten years by one of our large insurance companies reveals that accidents in the home caused 18.81 per cent of the total claims by number.

Automobile accidents cause 22.63 per cent of the claims and accidents on buildings, other than the home caused 21.69 per cent. Many of the accidents classified as pedestrian were caused by automobiles, so the use of the automobile was by far the leading source of accidental injury and death.

In fact, nearly one-third of all claims were for accidents in which the victim was either an occupant or was struck by the automobile. Sports and recreation claims accounted for 14.58 per cent of the total, baseball, golf and bathing being the heaviest contributors.

That the injuries from these principal causes of accidents are becoming more serious each year is shown by the fact that the average claim payment because of automobiles, home occupational, pedestrian and mishaps in sports and recreation show an increase in the past few years.

The statistics above reveal the principal causes of accidents, and with the summer months approaching, when more automobiles are on the highways and vacation days near, the chances of meeting with some kind of an accident are great.

No one knows when an accident may happen to them, personally. Accidents cannot always be avoided . . . and accidents are expensive. You cannot protect yourself against meeting with an accident, but you can protect yourself against financial loss as a result of an accident by purchasing an accident insurance policy.

—STATE ST.—
Hears:

That the rally is not expected to gain more than 10 per cent from the recent lowest. Traders feel the burst of strength was due to support extended by interests with additional stock to liquidate. In other words, it is the same old story of waiting for Congress to do something constructive. Given some encouragement the market might surprise the most optimistic.

The Tractions

Just about every known excuse has been advanced to explain the weakness of the tractions. First it was said political interests were selling. Then the Street heard that a large trust was disposing of its stock. In the case of Brooklyn-Manhattan the latter would seem to be true. But the fact remains that the large traction companies have heavy funded indebtedness to care for this year.

In the case of Interborough Rapid Transit there are issues to the amount of $42,712,000 to be cared for by October first. If these bonds cannot be refunded, and it hardly seems likely, holders will undoubtedly be asked to accept an extension. Brooklyn-Manhattan has $11,000,000 worth of notes due on August first. Because of a superior earnings position bankers are expected to take care of this obligation.

Boardroom Briefs

Grains are still pretty jumpy and react sharply to weather reports . . . On Thursday, for instance, beneficial rains in the Dakotas swept grain down 3 cents . . . This was followed by a speedy snapback on stories of a northwest blizzard . . . At present estimates are that the four principal crop states will show a reduction in spring wheat acreage at least 15 per cent from last year.

A few weeks back it was noted here that some interests were impressed with the rubber shares . . . Not only is rubber selling at what appear to be bottom prices, but it is in a fair way to experience a much improved demand . . . This demand will come from the tire makers who report the new oversized tire, requiring 45 per cent more rubber, is meeting a very favorable reception.

STOCKS EASIER IN WALL ST. DEALINGS

New York, May 27 — Pivotal shares mostly displayed an easier tone in trading on the New York Stock Exchange today as the market settled into a watchful waiting attitude after yesterday's late upturn.

The non-partisan statement of senatorial leaders expressing determination to balance the budget, together with reports of a swing toward the manufacturers' sales tax, were widely described in banking and brokerage quarters as encouraging.

HOLIDAY A FACTOR

The approach of the holiday week-end, however, tended to discourage extension of stock market commitments, and the persistent trickle of liquidation imparted a somewhat heavy tone in extremely quiet trading.

The liquidation was still concentrated in utilities, tobaccos, rails and food shares.

Stocks closed with a weak tone sagging sharply after reduction of the General Electric dividend.

Net losses ranged from about 1 to 5 points, with transactions approximately 1,000,000 shares. General Electric dropped nearly 3 and Westinghouse lost more than 4.

American Telephone Consolidated Gas, Atchison, Union Pacific and American Tobacco "B" were down 2 to 3. U. S. Steel and American Can yielded only about a point. Beechnut Packing lost 5¼.

MARGINS LIQUIDATED

A further drop of $21,000,000 shown in the weekly brokerage loan statement reducing the total to a new low for the tabulation at only $393,000,000, gave further evidence of the extreme degree of liquidity reached in the 2½-year deflation of marginal accounts. This total contrasts with a peak of $6,804,000,000 in October, 1929.

But impaired loan envelopes of banks still provide a source of selling as long as the urge toward liquidity persists. The latest statement of the weekly reporting member banks of the Reserve System showed loans on security collateral of $4,950,000,000. This item, however has been sharply reduced since the peak of $8,568,000,000 reached in June of 1930, but selling from this source may subside if the Federal Reserve expansion program can be made effective.

Business leaders point to the thoroughly sold out condition of the country, particularly in regard to inventories of goods, as placing it in a position to move forward, once hangover uncertainties can be removed.

Wall St., however, showed little disposition to attempt to anticipate a final agreement upon federal tax measures by constructive activity in the securities markets. Brokerage quarters were inclined to the view that there had been so many disappointments that definite action would be necessary.

Dun's spoke rather cheerfully of a pickup in retail trade, with good weather and the approach of the Memorial Day holiday, while Bradstreet's dwelt on the depressed state of industry.

General Electric on a 40-Ct. Basis

New York, May 27 (AP)—General Electric Co. today declared a quarterly dividend of ten cents on the capital stock. Company previously paid 25 cents quarterly.

This is the second reduction in the dividend this year. Three months ago the company reduced quarterly payments to 25 cents from a rate of 40 cents quarterly, which had been in effect since the stock was split four for one in January, 1930.

Directors declared the regular quarterly dividend of 15 cents on the par special stock.

Stock Exchange for Fuller Publicity

New York, May 27 (AP)—Continuing its campaign for fuller publicity from corporations whose securities are listed, the New York Stock Exchange is seeking to obtain earlier publication of annual reports by getting definite agreements, when applications are made for listing additional securities, that reports will be published not later than specified dates.

In establishing a level at $73,000, the lowest since 1919, New York Stock Exchange seat values broke through something of a resistance point which had held for two months or more. Within that time a number of seats changed hands at a minimum of $80,000 and a high of $85,000.

The generally poor showing of April railroad statements issued so far indicates that the carriers, despite the drastic economies effected, still are finding it exceedingly difficult to present encouraging figures in net operating income against the handicap of heavy losses in gross.

United Cigar Profits Lower

So far this year profits of United Cigar Stores Company of America are not as good as last year, George Wattley, treasurer, told stockholders at the annual meeting. Stockholders approved cancellation and retirement of 3468 shares of preferred stock held in company's treasury, reducing capitalization of the company by $346,800.

I could change my general plan
I'd be an India rubber man,
And at the motion picture show
Just stretch my neck, vo-do-de-o;
Then at a visit to the zoo
Rub noses with the kangaroo,
And if I got into a fight,
I'd run, then turn and use my right;
And think of all the girlish charms
That I could hold within my arms!
The little that I'd eat and drink
Would go a long way, don't you think?
A long, long way, for you will note
'Twould travel through a lot of throat.
Yes, I'd like nothing better than
To be an India rubber man.

Reduce 30 Pounds Never Felt Better

Safe Way to Lose Fat

Take the case of Miss Madelone Crowley, for instance, who lives in Little Rock, Ark. Just read her letter:

"I have used Kruschen Salts for one year—when I started I weighed 140 pounds—now I weigh 110 pounds and never felt better in my life."

That's the big reason a host of men and women take Kruschen to lose weight—as the fat goes you gain in health—skin clears—eyes grow bright—activity replaces indolence.

Take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast—cut down on fatty meats, potatoes and sweets—a jar of Kruschen that costs but a trifle last 4 weeks—get it at any drug store in the world—but for your health's sake demand and get Kruschen Salts.

Visitors to the State House grounds in many instances go away with the mistaken idea that the late Senator Henry Cabot Lodge is buried there. The mistake arises over the fact that the granite base for the bronze figure has been in position now for several months. Nobody seems to know when the statue will be placed in position or the dedication exercises will take place.

What the Hearst Papers Advocate No. 7 Federal sales tax and excise taxes to replace the income tax, which has degenerated into a racket.

The Way to Cut Taxes--- Cut City Waste, Graft!

THE Massachusetts Legislature is in danger of going tax wild.

It must keep its head.

It must look the facts in the face.

It must reject the absurd, the fanciful, the demagogic and the hazardous tax schemes which have been proposed to it.

If it will only evolve a simple, sensible plan to meet the exigencies of these trying times, it will regain for itself much of the public estimation it has lost through the evident errors and blunders for which it has been responsible in the past.

Some of the cities of Massachusetts are hard put to it, no doubt. Mayor Bates of Salem estimates that their expenditures for relief of unemployment and the consequences of the times will amount to $24,000,000 this year.

In short, for public charity the cities alone will expend $12 for every $1 appropriated ten years ago.

* * *

THE cities and towns of the Bay State are expending, for all purpose, $274,000,000 a year, every penny of which comes out of the pockets of the taxpayers. Real estate is bearing the major share of that burden, and it is a burden with home owners and tenants out of work, unable to pay their rent.

So the general scheme is to soak those who are making a few dollars this year or are suspected of having a few dollars.

One Representative would place a special tax upon gas and electric companies before they were permitted to pay dividends to their shareholders.

Another would have the State operate "nigger pools" and use the profits for charity.

Nuisance taxes are proposed upon bottled beverages, amusements and cigarettes. Others would saddle a $5 head tax upon the head of every person in the State, including those whose heads are bowed with grief and suffering.

It yet remains for some addle-pated legislator to think up a scheme to tax the dead in their graves.

Yet none, or hardly anyone, thinks of telling these cities and towns to cut down some of their useless expenses and silly extravagances. Martin M. Lomasney said, not so long ago, if municipal graft were eliminated, taxes would never have to be raised again.

The idea seems to be to pour money down the chute through which $274,000,000 is flooding every year.

How bad is the problem?

State Tax Commissioner Long's estimate seems to indicate that new taxes amounting to $15,000,000 would suffice.

* * *

SUPPOSE the State should allot $5,000,000 from the gasoline tax and tell the cities and towns to "raise" the other $10,000,000 by "lowering" their needless expenses! There is a simple if not consistent solution. But no tax solution is ever a consistent one. They lack not only consistency but simplicity as well.

The State ought to beware of nuisance taxes. They are not only nuisances but dangerous experiments as well. The legitimate bottling industry, for example, is having hard enough time to get by and keep its head above water without driving the 300-odd establishments out of business and forcing its several hundred employes into the ranks of the unemployed.

The Massachusetts cigar industry ought to be allowed to continue as an employer of labor—cigarmakers, not the auctioneers.

We want more employment, not less employment. Also, we want a little sensible economy without another expensive drag out of the pockets of the taxpayers.

Why Bay Staters Live Long

"You have published the statement in the editorial columns that people live longer in Massachusetts than elsewhere in the United States? Do you believe you have firm grounds for the statement?"—From a letter to The Editor.

Yes.

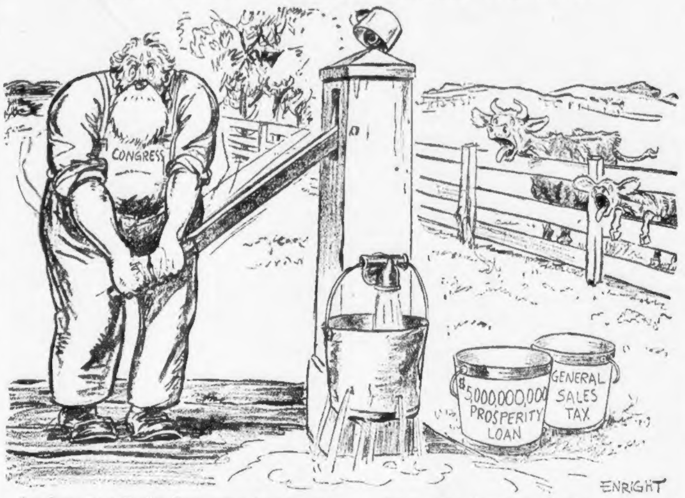
It is taken from this fact—vital statistics show that more people die past the age of eighty years than in any other State. In other words, more people live beyond the age of eighty years.

We have a sturdy and a DEPENDABLE climate. Meteorological records confirm this. We have a resisting soil and we have contiguity to the sea. History reveals that these are the elements which produce material strength among the people.

Massachusetts (and this is a fact of vital importance, too), has the most thoroughly and adequately developed public health service in the world. We had, for example, the first free tuberculosis sanatoria, the first free dental clinics, the first public health inspection in the schools. We alone have a free cancer hospital, and the mortality rate of that disease in this State is declining.

And don't forget our fine professional men. We have in and around Boston, on the average, the highest degree of medical, surgical and dental skill which exists in this country. And those gentlemen (may it always be held to their credit) have been wonderfully generous in contributing their skill and talent to the public health service of Massachusetts. "Massachusetts, There She Stands."

The Fable of the Foolish Farmer



Once there was a Foolish Farmer who set out to water his stock.

There was plenty of water in the well, the pump was in good working order, but the stock went dry because instead of using the two good pails that stood by the well this farmer, in his folly, tried to fill a pail that was so full of holes it was a sieve.

And even when he saw that the pail he chose would not hold water the Foolish Farmer stubbornly refused to use the two good pails, and the stock bawled and bawled and stayed thirsty.

Congress, today, is much like the Foolish Farmer of the fable.

It hears the cry of distress from the millions of unemployed and it discusses every subject under heaven except the one means of creating work for the nation's willing workers—the $5,000,000,000 Prosperity Loan.

It preaches economy and fails to practice it; it toys with the budget, fails to settle on an equitable plan of taxation that will yield the necessary revenue—while it passes up the General Sales Tax, which would aid in achieving the goal.

Meanwhile, like the Foolish Farmer, it fumes and fusses and frets and, of course, in the end it must fail.

New York Day by Day

Thoughts While Strolling

NEW YORK, May 27—Thoughts while strolling: The Ozark Tea Room. Should attract the ride hoppers. Anne Pennington suggests cherry blossoms. Overheard: "Every now and then I have a glimmer of consciousness." Whatever became of the billiken?" The recrudescence of street walking. Arthur Klein's tight collars.

Few names sound so soapy as Cyril Hume's. Unless it's that of the chorus girl, Eddlish Foame. One word description of Ed Wynne—fluttery. Jack Pulaski of Variety. The chalky vapor of a midsummer drizzle. Like the gray-white of Havre. Peggy Joyce should abandon that platinum effect.

Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, a Buffalo, N. Y., boy, who made good in the city. The desolation of those blue-stockinged clubs. I could stand all day before the ornate windows of the fancy food shops. Buns, jams, tarts, sausage rolls, spiced hams. Let me stand here and bleed!

Nothing looks smarter than those pert little cabs with the sleek cobbed horses. George McManus is a spat wearer, too. Wonder if others feel humble before those piously embroidered mottoes. Such as "Fear God Above Every Thynge." That aristocratic movie called "The Little."

People wander these days, whereas they used to gallop. And the snarl is a smile. Maybe the panic was good for us after all. But I don't care for another, thanks. Bicycles everywhere. Tony Biddle's minstrel collar. Something coquettish about the name Kathleen Richard Dix reminds me of Milton Sills.

Side street grogs. With cappers standing a few doors away. Robert Milton's flaming red hair. The Broadway Tabernacle—the spot of calm in the hurricane's vortex. Boy, am I getting off philosophy. Flappers, leading great Danes by collars. Irony: Cunard ships were once in African slave trade.

The bewildered blinking of those leaving matinees. Lenny Bergman has a different tie pin for every day in the year. I'm always mixing up Walter Dean Goldbeck and Dan Sayre Grosbeck. Wonder if Islam is right—all blue eyed people are sinners? Tony Wons always sounds as though he just woke up.

* * *

She was a daguerreotype lady with widely spaced innocent eyes and long auburn hair twisted in a mid-Victorian knot. To the casual passerby she suggested arbored archways and crinolines. At 49th street and 5th avenue she obeyed a policeman's come-on wave and escaped taxi wheels by an eyelash. In the rasping croak of a waterfront harridan she let go a volley of epithets that even brought a flush to the crossing cop. Then she walked daintily on. New York!

* * *

The veteran minstrel, Willis P. Sweatnam, spent his declining years at the Lambs. Most of the time he lounged in valetudinarian ease in the card room. For many days a quick-stepping actor would pass behind his chair with: "Hello, Willis, what's new?" Before the octogenarian could turn, the questioner was gone. This went on for months with increasing irritation. One day following "Hello, Willis, what's new?" he gave a sudden turn and screamed: "New York, New Haven and neuritis, you blankety-blank."

* * *

Sweatnam trouped in the halcyon days of Hoey and Evans. Old Hoss Evans was a dazzling figure in the theater of that day. Especially for his pink striped shirt. Roscoe Peacock, grandest of the current recallers, revives a memory of him in "A Parlor Match." Evans was stealing a red hot stove and running across the stage with it. Then he galloped across with a stolen pullet, producing an egg almost as large as the chicken itself, exclaiming, "I don't believe it." My father used to try to tell of the incident to his nightly gang of pitch players. But laughter would always overcome him.

* * *

And someone tells me Chinatown not only has a red-haired Chinaman but a Chinese flapper with a chignon of blonde hair. At the moment, however, I am notched to 105 over a lady with jet black hair and a white cockatoo streak in a soda cashier's cage in West 41st street. My next leap through an emotional hoop may be for an Albino from Cuba. I'm fickle that way.

(Copyright, 1932, for the Boston Evening American.)

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Love Moves the World

ALWAYS THE tears are near, these days; going among those desperate millions who are "waiting for something to break." Watching their dogged struggle to hold on, seeing their brave and beautiful battle to save their children, if they cannot save themselves, from ruin.

Elsie Robinson

Yesterday I saw rejoicing in a little shanty. An ailing, aging man; a ragged, battered woman: living by the miserable makeshifts of the poor. Yet they were happy, for they were going to give young Jimmy another term at school.

Somehow they'd manage it, God only knows by what scrimping and privation! But that didn't matter. Hunger, cold, sickness — nothing mattered as long as young Jim could "graduate from Hi."

Seeing their radiant faces, I turned my own away, ashamed. Such heroic unselfishness! — How much the world owes to it! Everything. And I thought of something Will Durant said in the story of his own life,—"Transition." His parents, too, had toiled and hoped and sacrificed like that to give him his chance. Out of his gratitude he wrote:

"I have often reflected on this impulse, which seems to be so deeply rooted in every parent's heart, to give the children a finer rearing than their own.

"We are not such a bad lot after all, we funny theological apes; we utter a regrettable amount of nonsense on our parabola through the world, but we can love with a magnificent devotion.

"When I wish to renew my faith in progress I consider the working and power of this instinct of parental aid; how it lifts the children upon the shoulders of the parents, generation after generation, and raises life to higher levels of enterprise and thought.

"ALL LAWS, ACTUAL OR PROPOSED, CAN BE ONLY A MODEST FORCE BESIDE THIS LEVER THROUGH WHICH LOVE MOVES THE WORLD."

Love moves the world. Despite our selfishness, our stupidity, our cowardice and greed, love works its brave and lovely miracle.

Have you, too, felt your faith in humanity waver? Wondered if we were worth all the effort that we cost? Soon with disgust, the pettiness of the human plan? Then turn and look. All around you moves the answer to your doubt!

The tired, sloppy girl who brings your waffles at the short order counter—

The homeless, shapeless, middle-aged mother, haggling with the market man over a bunch of carrots—

The stupid, young fellow who earns a few dollars driving a night taxi, after eight hours in the shipping room—

The shabby, lagging old fellow who carries the coal into your basement—

To you they are only dull units in a dreary, ant-like file of ignorant laborers. You forget them when you weigh the values of life—when you quote your cynical philosophy and decide that human beings are pitiful puppets in a contemptible comedy.

But you are wrong!

There is that within these weary workers which mocks your cynicism; which puts to shame your sneers.

There is love in them; there is courage; and there is a dream—

A DREAM OF BETTER THINGS TO BE. A DREAM OF A NOBLER, LOVELIER, FREER WORLD WHICH THEIR CHILDREN MAY INHERIT!

And what does any sacrifice mean to them if, thereby, they may give their children greater life?

Looking out from your easy chair you see the mud.

Looking up from their gutters, they see the stars, and, kneeling, let their children mount on them, as stairs!

Just Folks

Home Ingredients

If it's only just a shelter from the rain and winter snow;
If it's only just a place to sleep when overtired you grow;
If it's just a place to pack your bag when you decide to roam,
It may be a handsome building, but it's truly not a home.

If it's just a place to eat in when you're not invited out;
If you're snapping at the children every time they romp about;
If you never, proud and happy walk its garden in the gloam,
You may have a house to look at, but you haven't made a home.

If it's just a place to dwell in, not to rest and read and stay;
If the children very early choose to go elsewhere to play;
If the neighbors' understanding of their needs exceeds your own,
Though you give them food and shelter, still a home they've never known.

Oh, it's not from brick and plaster and from costly gilded things,
But from love and mirth and laughter that the soul's contentment springs.
It's by sympathy and patience and by glad hearts unafraid
And unfaltering devotion all the happy homes are made.

What the Hearst Papers Advocate No. 8 Five billion dollar Federal loan for public works and to relieve unemployment.

This Ominous Calm: A Warning

By Claude G. Bowers

FOR THREE YEARS the nation has been in the throes of a serious and dangerous economic crisis, and there are probably two or three million men on whom families depend who have had no work or very little within this time.

Each year — almost each month — during these three years more have been added to the army of the dispossessed.

And every time another man is deprived of a job the purchasing power of the nation is reduced just that much.

And every time the purchasing power is reduced the business of the retail merchant suffers just a little more; and that injures the wholesaler just a little more; and that hurts the manufacturer just a little more and leads to the discharge of more men from the factories because there is a decreasing demand for the manufacturers' products.

Thus, at the end of three years we are in a worse condition, as far as unemployment is concerned, than we have been at any time since the bursting of the market bubble.

• • •

Men Have Submitted Quietly to Evictions

The amazing thing is that, despite the suffering, frequently threatening starvation, where there actually is not starvation the millions of breadwinners out of jobs have been quiet and orderly. One would have thought a few years ago that under existing conditions, there would be a series of riots, and that radicalism would go on a rampage. There has been nothing of the sort.

Men have quietly submitted to evictions from their rented houses; and there have been few strikes and none of any magnitude. This is true today when unemployment is greater than ever before.

To some this is all very encouraging. Some agree that it is highly complimentary to the self-control of the American worker. Some assume that he is not on a rampage because charity has taken care of him and his family to the extent of preventing starvation. Others, more thoughtful, we think, conclude that he is quiet through fear—that the magnitude of the disaster has really stunned him.

And then there are others, more thoughtful still, who think this unusual calm is ominous. They remind us that it may be like the deadly quiet just before a great storm.

A Waning Faith

We are afraid that men in power in Washington are not even curious to know what is going on in the minds of these thirty millions who are in abject want because of the unemployment of the breadwinners. We must confess that we are. And we think we have a good idea. We receive hundreds of letters from among these unfortunates many from women, mothers of children, who paint an appalling picture of misery and dumb despair. Some are threatening—not many.

But most indicate a waning faith in the perfection of our political institutions and social system. We quote from one of them:

• • •

"I have never cared to be rich. I never expected to be. And I have never been annoyed because others are rich. Some of these deserve to be. And if others do not, it never struck me it was anything for me to worry about.

"But I have always wanted to be comfortable, and was willing to put in hard work in a factory to make me comfortable. But for two years I have not had a job. I have lost the home on which I was paying because I could not keep up the payments. My small savings in the bank are now gone. My wife is sick from worry. My children merely get enough to eat to keep body and soul together. And I am getting bitter. I have lost all faith in our kind of government, and all faith in our social system. I am ready for a change."

This thought is becoming deeply embedded in the consciousness of millions and millions of people—because they cannot possibly be satisfied with a situation that takes no thought of their condition.

• • •

All They Want Is Work

This man is not starving, because his friends chip in to prevent it. But his morale is gone. His faith is gone. And all this is perfectly natural.

John Pierpont Morgan would feel the same way under similar circumstances. Even Mr. Hoover. And yet all these men want is work—the right to work, which means the right to live in self-respect.

Meanwhile the President persists in his devotion to a dole in preventing actual starvation. Many months ago a hundred leading economists protested against the "present dole of public and private charity."

"I don't want your money, child—damn your charity—I want work," says the character in Mrs. Gaskell's novel of the days of the Industrial revolution. From "Buy an apple" to the block aid movement, there has been nothing impressive or even approaching a real solution of the grave human problem of unemployment and starvation.

The greatest nation, with the greatest resources in the world cannot muddle along forever with pee-wee things, when from eight to ten million breadwinners are thrown into the human scrap heap and the number is on the increase. The President evidently does not have the slightest conception of the conditions in the homes of millions of the people, who are just as self-respecting as he is; who want to work and earn their bread and are denied.

• • •

There Is Only One Way Out

It is sheer nonsense for him to say that we want to get back to normal employment; it is incredible that he should not know that as long as thirty million people, directly and indirectly affected by unemployment, are deprived of purchasing power there will never be a return to normal employment. There is only one way out—a prosperity loan for public works on a scale commensurate with the magnitude of the crisis.

We have no patience with the President's point that, no matter how desperate and dangerous the state of unemployment, no Federal money must be used on anything that does not pay dividends to some one or yield a revenue in money to the government.

Public improvements do not usually bring in revenue. New York State has spent hundreds of millions on public parks that pay no man a dividend and yield scarcely any revenue; but because these are the greatest investments New York has ever made for humanity. More than that: it is investments such as these for the benefit of men, women and children that bind people to their institutions with a realization that their government has some interest in them as human beings.

No one proposes that bonds be sold that money may be found to dump into the sea. The money is to be spent on roads—and Rome found they paid dividends indirectly and enormously, on rivers and harbors, on improvements of permanent value.

• • •

A Prosperity Loan Is the Biggest Barricade

Congress has now recognized the principle behind the prosperity loan and there is going to be one. One of the measures pending will be passed. And it is unthinkable that Mr. Hoover would dare to veto it. That would be too much like Nero fiddling a lovely tune while Rome burned. It would be too suggestive of the type of ruler Rome had just before the cyclone.

And we are not going to have this calm—this ominous calm—much longer. Human torture will find a tongue. We dare not enter another winter—a fourth winter of human misery—with nothing done to put men to work.

The prosperity loan is the best barricade that can be built against an inundation of extreme radicalism. We are living in a revolutionary atmosphere—and on a live volcano.

Business men of intelligence will back Congress in an adequate prosperity loan; and all who want to preserve the faith of the people in our political and social system must.

If the President is against it—Congress must push ahead and do its duty and let the responsibility rest where it will.
